Mrs. Hoover's C[illegible]t.
New York Heat.
Wee Willie's Name.
Charity Is Cold.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

INVITING ALL THE wives of Congressmen, as custom orders, Mrs. Hoover invited among others the negro wife of a negro Congressman, Mrs. de Priest, to have tea in the White House.

Senator Blease is not to be congratulated on his reference to the incident.

He should remember that Mrs. Hoover had arranged a series of teas at the White House, which is public property, for "the wives of all Congressmen."

Deliberately to strike from her list one woman whose husband is a member of Congress because she happened to be of African descent would have been to show contempt for the Constitution of the United States.

Mrs. Hoover leaves that to bootleggers and their "respectable" customers. She is to be congratulated upon the fact that she does so.

Seven consecutive days of heat in New York city have killed eight, including one policeman, who died on duty.

Ninety degrees, plus great humidity, is a dangerous temperature in New York.

One hundred and fifteen degrees in the dry air of the Mojave desert, 2500 feet above the Pacific, is not disagreeable.

A gangster or racketeer killing in these days is nothing to write much about. But what do you think of the name "Wee Willie Doody" for a gunman and mail robber?

The name interests the police in connection with the killing of a druggist.

Names like "Scarface Al Capone" you can understand.

But what did the gunman do to be called "Wee Willie?"

To say that charity is cold puts it mildly. It is too late to ask the opinion of John Nelson, recently inmate of a "Home for Old Folks." He was 70 years old, too young, he said, to be a pauper and live on charity, so he ran away.

He had enough money to pay for a cheap room at a hotel, but none left over to pay for food. He lived a free man as long as he could. Yesterday, standing in front of a delicatessen store, looking at the food, he fell in a faint and died. The doctor said, "starvation." The police said, "starvation and pride."

At all events, John Nelson is out of the home for old folks, now, permanently.

President Hoover's task is not easy. People along the Canada border telegraph and write, "Won't you please stop the shooting." According to schedule, yesterday, he was to receive "the national loyalty commission" of the Presbyterian Church, urging enforcement of prohibition.

In New York a distinguished bootlegger on trial summoned some of his best customers as witnesses. Respectable bankers and manufacturers testified that they did business with the bootlegger and "found his goods always excellent."

The law is not taken seriously by those that do not choose to take it so.

We are "pushing swiftly" to a discussion of a reduction of armaments, and especially of a reduction of sea power.

Great Britain, Japan and the United States will have the first discussion.

American patriots will cross their fingers, remembering the last naval conference in Washington, when this country destroyed hundreds of millions of real battleships, some partly finished, while Britain, with a magnificent gesture, burned interesting, but not expensive blueprints of ships that might be built, some day, perhaps.

Rene La Coste, French, best tennis player in the world, who recently beat the American, Tilden, surprises those that know nothing about Frenchmen.

He wins because of his steady DETERMINATION. He never tires, doesn't get excited, and WINS.

Consider the amazing fact that all his life he has drunk red French wine diluted with water. The French have been brought up for centuries on light wine and good wheat bread.

Young gentlemen in this country will bear in mind that Rene La Coste never overstimulated his heart with cocktails, or poisoned himself with gin or whiskey.

Young gentlemen with their diplomas from many universities will be soon waiting for the world to answer the question, "What have you to offer?"

The world will answer, "Experience, and plenty of it!"

Graduates will find that their real education begins NOW. Some of them, convinced that they already amount to something, will get nothing.

College education FORMS youth, when it does not DEFORM it, as the French proverb says of travel.

SHOE UNION BAN ON 5-DAY WEEK

Rochester, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—The five-day week was disapproved as economically impractical at this time in a report of officers adopted by the Boot & Shoe Workers Union in convention here today.

Although it has been indorsed by the American Federation of Labor, the report said that to adopt the shorter week at this time would be unfair to union employers and would react against the workers.

Curtailed production and increased costs would place the employer at a disadvantage with open shop competition and the workers would suffer in smaller earnings, the report said.

Greater organization in the industry is the pressing need now, it was declared. The convention, which has been in session here since Monday, will close tomorrow with election of officers.

Stowaway Tells of Perils

(This is the third installment of Schreiber's own story. The first part told of his preparations for the flight and how he hid himself in the Yellow Bird, going on to recount his harrowing experiences in crossing the Atlantic. His account yesterday told of his reception in France, and how he realized that it was his escapade which nearly cost the lives of the fliers several times. He also recounted his visit, with the others, to the home of Mme. Nungesser. Today, he continues his narrative.)

READING IS FORCED TO RETRACT

Arthur K. Reading, former Attorney-General, under cross-examination in the disbarment proceedings against him in Supreme Court, admitted today he had made a "misstatement" in his testimony before the legislative committee whose investigation caused his resignation.

He retracted his testimony that the legislative committee, by forcing he did know of the impending suit of Hugh B. Mewar when he drew a check for $10,000 on the Decimo Club, admitting that part of the club's funds being tied up was part of the reason.

"Then you did not tell the truth at the legislative hearing, Mr. Reading?" Continued on Page 2, Column 6.

Tornado Hits Two Towns in Nebraska

Beatrice, Neb., June 20 (AP)—A tornado struck at Wymore, Neb., 10 miles south of here early today, destroying at least five homes over an area of about five blocks. The tornado swept north into the adjoining town of Blue Springs, damaging a number of homes. No one was killed or injured so far as could be learned.

Vt. Woman Held for Shooting at Man

Burlington, Vt., June 20 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Vanderhoof today was taken into custody by police after it was alleged, she had unsuccessfully attempted to shoot a neighbor, Oliver Martin. She was held for observation.

FIRE SCARE IN NAVAL HOSPITAL

Fire, accompanied by thick black smoke, caused a scare today at Chelsea Naval Hospital, where several hundred patients are housed.

The blaze was in the carpenter shop which is situated behind the guards' house and about 250 yards from the hospital wards. The clouds of smoke rolled over the eastern entrance.

A number of naval officers on duty at the institution said that the fire was confined to the shop and extinguished the flames without outside aid, an alarm was sent in to the fire department and the arrival of the apparatus threw a fright into some of the patients.

The fire started when a can of wax which was being heated over a gas flame tipped over. The wax caught fire and sent up the heavy pall of smoke. Damage to the building was slight.

Kin of "Rich Man's Bootlegger" on Jury

New York, June 20 (AP)—A mistrial was declared today in the case of James McCann, "rich man's bootlegger," and three associates, when it was discovered at the opening of the third day of the trial in federal court that Edwin J. Carroll, a member of the jury, was a nephew by marriage of McCann.

Denies Prohibition Boosts U. S. Wealth

By FRANCIS J. TIETSORT

New York, June 20—The National Industrial Conference Board disagrees with the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, which through the Rev. Deets Pickett, its research secretary at Washington, lately gave to the Associated Press for national dissemination a statement that by virtue of prohibition the national wealth of the United States had been increased by $72,000,000,000.

On the contrary, it is revealed by America's industrial leaders that national wealth has declined since prohibition came into force to the amount of $135,000,000,000.

This is a decrease nearly double the sum by which the Rev. Mr. Pickett asserts it to have increased. The difference between the two figures aggregate 207 billions.

The following figures, which were not part of any prohibition controversy, were obtained from the office of the National Industrial Conference Board at 247 Park ave., New York. They take in the year of the peak of post-war prosperity, 1920, when prohibition be-Sent hurtling four stories when the staging on which they were painting at 454 Huntington ave, gave way, Arthur Irvingson, 35, of Pond Lane, Randolph, and Norman Miller, 34, of 92 Huntington ave., were probably fatally injured today.

The men were sent to City Hospital in police ambulances by Motorcycle Officer James P. Roche of Division 10, and their names were placed on the danger list, both suffering from probably fractured spines.

According to the police, the men were painting trimmings on an apartment house when a hook slipped and the staging dropped. Both men fell on their backs and were unconscious when picked up.

Clear Litchfield of Well Poisoning

Brockton, June 20—Henry Litchfield of South Hanson was found not guilty by a jury in Plymouth superior court of the charge of poisoning the well of Bradford E. Drayton of Monponsett.

The verdict, returned sealed last night, was opened by Judge E. T. Broadhurst when court convened today.

Japan to Aid U. S. in Disarmament Move

Tokyo, June 20 (AP)—It was learned on high authority today that Baron Tanaka, Japanese premier, had conveyed to the United States official assurance of Japan's willingness to contribute fully to any new effort at armament reduction. The premier yesterday received Edwin Neville, American embassy counsellor.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF CYANIDE

The summer home of a Boston man and Blue Book registerite at Manchester-by-the-Sea will be the scene today of the police investigation into the mysterious death of Dwight Underwood, 24, Tech senior, who was found dead in a Back Bay rooming house after drinking a "cyanide cocktail."

Sergt. Walter French of Back Bay police left for the North Shore shortly after noon. His object is to learn whether the deadly poison, found in a bottle labelled "vermouth" in the Back Bay rooming house, came from the summer residence, where a dinner party was given last Saturday night.

It was at this home that Underwood is said to have worked wood, the second blind student to be graduated from Harvard, was one of those receiving degrees in course. Last night he nearly lost his life when he fell in front of a subway train.

Twenty students, also a record number, received the highest scholastic distinction obtainable—the bachelor of arts or bachelor of science summa cum laude.

These 20 were:

HIGHEST HONORS

A. B.—Harry Andrew Blackmun, St. Paul, Minn.; John Philip Cooke, Evanston, Ill.; Raymond Finley Courtney, Tulsa, Okla.; Robert Crehore Darling, Hartford, Ct.; Gerald Frank Else, Kansas City, Mo.; John King Fairbank, Sioux Falls, S.D.; Harold Freeze Folland, Salt Lake City, Utah; James Sutherland Frame, New York City; Oliver Schiele Laud-Methuen; Thomas Arnold McGovern, Schenectady, N. Y.; Edward Warren Moore, Wollaston; Summer Byron Myers, Winthrop; Abraham Raum, Lynn; Phillip Hamilton Rhinelander Washburn, D. C.; Saul Rosenzweig, Malden.

S. B.—Charles Danzig, Newark, N. J.; Rollin Homer Person, New Hartford, Ct.; Melvin Hirsch Siegel, Superior, Wis.; George Roach Van Schaack, Ossackie, N. Y.

As of the class of 1928 S. B. summa cum laude, Edgar Packard Dwan, Brookline.

WINS FAY DIPLOMA.

In the law school the highest honor, the Fay diploma, went to Herman Thomas Anstern of New York.

Approximately one-third of those graduated received honors in studies.

Of the total degrees, 895 went to the undergraduates in Harvard College, to graduates of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, 65 to the engineering school, 55 in the Graduate School of Education, 435 to the law school, 248 to the business school and 135 to the medical school.

In addition to Secretary Adams, former treasurer of Harvard; Governor Rollins and Secretary Kellogg—all of whom received the honorary degree Doctor of Laws—the honorary degrees conferred by President Lowell went to the following men:

HONORARY DEGREES

Master of Arts: Daniel Berkeley Updike, master printer, Boston; Lamer Lawrence, designer of the Wright-Whirlwind airplane motor, and Robert Isaac Rees, Boston.

Doctor of Divinity: Charles Whitney Gilkey, professor at Chicago University, and James Hardy Ropes.

Doctor of Laws: Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Ernest Barker professor of political science at the University of Cambridge in England.

Doctor of Science: Henry Norris Russell, astronomer, and Rene Leriche, professor of surgery at the University of Strassbourg, Germany.

ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR

In an address at the commencement exercises, Governor Allen declared the "loyalty to Harvard by more than 50,000 living graduates is an element of strength to our State and Nation."

"Harvard and Harvard men," said the Governor, "are an added promise of permanence to our institutions.

"Constructive thinking and planning in the field of social welfare is an outstanding need of the day. Here we must rely upon the leadership of educated men.

"The test of the social value of a university education may well rest upon the willingness and the ability of those who possess it to promote the common good."

Steamer Funnel Painted Crimson for Class of '09

Waterfront men rubbed their eyes in surprise today when they discovered a crimson band around the funnel of the steamship Governor Dingley, in place of the blue stripe which has distinguished it for years.

Investigation revealed that the change was made at the behest of the Harvard alumni of the class of '09, who have chartered the boat for a trip to the New London races. Three hundred in number, including wives friends and relatives, sail from Central wharf on Saturday.

Brown's 'Handsomest' Senior Reveals Secret Wedding

Providence, June 20—Howard F. Eastwood, Brown University's "handsomest" by vote of the class of 1929, golf and hockey star, and supposed highly eligible bachelor, kept his romance a secret for ten months from his friends, classmates and college officials. Eastwood has announced his marriage to Dorothy Clough of 39 Selkirk rd., Providence.

College regulations forbid marriage of students without official sanction of the college and parents, which occasioned the secrecy. The couple were married in Stonington, Ct., shortly before college opened last year.

the treasury had not received a report today on the incident which occurred yesterday. He said he had wired the officers in charge of the Detroit office of the customs bureau to telegraph him the complete report and he expected it to be received during the day.

Secretary Stimson did not indicate what disposition would be made by the State Department of a report on the shooting nor did he disclose whether the American government would make any inquiry of Canada concerning the incident.

Rum Fleet Ready to Dash Across to U. S.

London, Ont., June 20 (Canadian Press)—Port Stanley has evidently become the base for liquor running on Lake Erie, following the intense drive off the Detroit border patrol against runners in the border cities area.

Operating from their new headquarters a score of speedy rum boats, capable of 60 miles an hour, could be seen moving about the harbor yesterday, awaiting the opening dash to Cleveland.

Changes Story of How Gordon Was Killed

Plattsburgh, N. Y., June 20—John C. Tulloch, port collector at Ogdensburg, in a new statement, denies that Border Patrolman Weldon J. Cheatham killed Arthur Gordon, alleged rum runner, with a rifle, last Saturday. According to Tulloch's story, the officer had a service revolver. The first report was that Cheatham's "rifle" was discharged when he stumbled while chasing Gordon, who left his auto and headed for the border.

Tulloch's new statement said the customs office "has taken care not to place revolvers in the hands of its men until they have been in the service from three to six months. Patrolman in this district have not used rifles in six years."

It is likely that the district attorney will transfer the investigation to the coroner of Clinton County. The Plattsburgh city judge has not the power to arrest and punish for contempt Cheatham and his fellow officer, F. L. Covey, who have not appeared at the investigation.

Gordon's Mother May Sue U. S. for $50,000

Plattsburgh, N. Y., June 20 (INS)—Mrs. Frank Stay, mother of young Arthur Gordon, slain by customs guards near the Canadian border, may file suit against the government for $50,000, it was learned today.

Judge F. C. Gordon, former assistant United States attorney and former city judge, will act for the mother in her effort to compel the government to make restitution for the death of her son.

The suit will be in the nature of a test case, as it has been proven that young Gordon was transporting liquor when fired upon.

Meanwhile, both the government and District Attorney Loyal O'Connell were marking time today in anticipation of the preliminary hearing of the case which comes up Monday. The hearing is expected to bring the case to a showdown and possibly as a result in murder charges against Customs Guards Cheatham and Coveny.

The guardsmen, who claim the killing was accidental, have been transferred to another county and have thus far refused to accept summonses, although Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman has promised to instruct them to accept subpoenas.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20 (INS)—Independence Day has been chosen by Leonard Kip Rhinelander, son of a wealthy New York family, to file his suit for divorce in a Nevada court, according to Rhinelander's Nevada attorney, Harley A. Harmon, who was in Los Angeles today. "Kip is not in the limelight for notoriety," Harmon said, but rather for freedom."

HOOVER PLANS FISHING TRIP

Washington, June 20 (INS)—Congress off his hands, President Hoover is to lose no time in going fishing. The President, accompanied by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, will leave the White House Friday for the headwaters of the Rapidan river in Virginia, where a temporary camp has been erected. They plan to stay over the week-end, returning to Washington Sunday or Monday.

Judge Will Hear Records in Court

The question of whether phonograph records sold by Miss Freida Herman, of a music shop, tend to corrupt the morals of youth, will be decided June 24 by Judge Albert Hayden of Roxbury court after an audition, he decided today.

Miss Herman, arrested on complaint of the Welch & Ward Society, was pleaded not guilty in charge of possessing and attempting to sell records containing language tending to corrupt the morals of youth.

SEEK BULLETS IN SEWER

FIND CLUES IN TECH DEATH

SEEK DRIVER, TOO.

In addition to the discovery of the place where the youth was employed Saturday night, police also unearthed two other facts which they regard as significant and which they intend to trace thoroughly.

They have definitely established that Underwood was driven home from Manchester-by-the-Sea following the dinner party. They have learned the identity of the driver of that car, who has not come forward so far, police claim. They will bend all efforts to finding him for questioning.

The second fact, which was brought to the attention of the police through a tip, may not be considered with the case, but will be thoroughly investigated. It is said that a load of liquor, 61 gallons, destined for Manchester, was seized in Scollay sq. last Saturday at noon.

FINDS POISON.

The death of young Underwood was believed to be due to natural causes when his body was discovered in the bathroom in New Bury st. Sunday. However, Associate Medical Examiner W. H. Wiers was a little suspicious of certain circumstances and performed a thorough autopsy.

This revealed that Underwood was killed by drinking the deadly cyanide, and analysis of the open bottle labelled "vermouth" showed it to contain that poison. Because he had failed to get his degree at Technology, it was then believed he had committed suicide.

But the arrival of a brother of the youth, Orin Underwood of Suffolk, and the questioning of several acquaintances, revealed that the boy had got over the melancholia which led him when he failed to learn he was not to be given the degree.

It was pointed out by authorities that had Underwood intended to commit suicide he would not have gone to Manchester to work that night, nor would he have made the preparations he did to spend two weeks with friends at Weymouth.

With elimination of the suicide theory, police turned to the other two possible theories—accident and murder. While police have stated they have been unable to establish any motive for foul play, they admit they have not eliminated that theory.

MAY QUESTION GUESTS.

The visit of Sergt. French to Manchester today is filled with possibilities. It was learned he intends to question occupants of the summer home regarding the cyanide and to learn if the "vermouth" bottle came from that home.

It is also understood several of the guests at the dinner may be questioned by the police.

The police learned the summer home angle through the investigation of George Houghton of Weymouth, the friend with whom Underwood intended to spend several weeks. Houghton found a place card in the dress suit hired by the youth, which gave the name of the summer home, and he turned it over to the police.

Episcopal Bishop Called to Meeting

New York, June 20—The Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop, has issued a call for a meeting of the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church, to be held in Atlantic City Oct. 2, 3 and 4.

This will be the first time the bishops have assembled on call from their leader except in emergencies, their previous routine meetings having been conducted only in connection with the triennial general conventions of the church.

At this meeting they will elect missionary bishops for Wyoming and Honolulu and will consider routine business.

2958 in Sing Sing During Fiscal Year

Ossining, N. Y., June 20 (INS)—Sing Sing had a greater number of prisoners during the past fiscal year than in any year since 1916, according to Warden Lewis E. Lawes. Records for the fiscal year ending June 30, show that 2958 different prisoners had been housed in Sing Sing. When the year opened there were 1713 prisoners in Sing Sing. Since then 1245 have been admitted.

Q.—How much of that testimony do you want to change? A.—I don't know what you are talking about.

"Never mind," said Atty. Mansfield, "the record knows."

In response to questions, Reading said he had no fear that his acceptance of a $25,000 check on June 4 and his giving the club a clean bill of health the next day, could be construed as corruption or a bribe.

He gave a detailed explanation of his work in revising the constitution of the Decimo Club and other papers, beginning June 9 and continuing to June 21, when he mailed the initial report to the Decimo.

SAYS HE TOLD ALL

Asked if he went into all the details of the legislative hearing that he earned the $25,000, Reading said he gave the information at the Legislature and the court would have the fullest detail.

Questioned about the time he spent out of the State on Decimo Club business, the former Attorney-General agreed that in 1927 he was out of the Commonwealth at least 90 days. This did not include L. A. C. matters.

"How much time was there left for State business," Mansfield asked.

"It was always available and performed all my duties," Reading replied.

Attorney Mansfield then introduced a Boston newspaper dated October 19, 1927, containing a story with headlines stating that the state pay increase was blocked by the absence of the attorney-general, but Reading said he found.

CHANGES TESTIMONY.

To this Reading replied that when the matter was pending Governor Fuller left town and the attorney-general followed. He said Governor Fuller returned first and, when he could not find Reading, issued a statement to the press.

Changing his testimony of yesterday, Reading denied he had placed Vincent Zeo, his assistant attorney-general, as associate counsel in a messy appeals bill he had left at the Decimo Club.

Reading said that some clerk in the Decimo office must have made the notation, recording Zeo as assistant counsel. Yesterday Reading agreed that Zeo was listed as such.

The former attorney-general said he drove to New York with Zeo in the latter's car and charged railroad fares for two, but never gave his assistant any money. He did pay for the gasoline on the trip, he said.

He said he never gave Zeo any recompense, except the trip to New York, as a vacation. Previously he had called Joseph D. Webster in New York, he testified, and Webster suggested that the expense of the trip be charged to the Decimo.

Atty. Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, referred to the trip Reading made to New York with his wife, June 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Q—Did you not charge for two rooms and occupied only one? A.—I charged for a two-room suite at the Commodore, $24 a day.

Q—This receipt you signed for the $25,000 check, was in the form of a receipted bill for services not yet performed, was it not? A.—I charged for and rendered a reply, but after he had been pressed, admitted it was.

Q—Why didn't you endorse that check? A.—I regret I didn't, but circumstances came up and I thought the receipt would cover it.

Reading finally agreed, after several questions, that there were no circumstances of importance.

Mansfield—Let me suggest the reason you did not endorse the check was because a record of your receiving the money would be set up? A.—Yes.

N. E. Salvation Army Leader Will Retire

Col. Stephen S. Marshall, commander of the New England provinces of the Salvation Army for seven years, will retire next week, having reached the age limit, it was learned today. He will be succeeded by Col. Atkinson, who will carry on the local organization, the only separate province left in the army. This effectively disposes of rumors that the New England province was to be discontinued, and the local work carried on from New York.

Donovan, Anderson Honored at Norwich

Northfield, Vt., June 20 (AP)—Colonel William J. Donovan of New York, former assistant United States attorney general, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, at the 110th commencement of Norwich University today. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on the Rev. William F. Anderson, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Massachusetts.

Bandit, the Better "Operator"; Saves Tonsils, Gets $210

Chicago, June 20 (AP)—"What you need," said Dr. F. Siegfried Jackson, examining a transient patient at his office, "is to have your tonsils taken out. I'll operate tomorrow."

"And I," said the patient, "will operate now."

BASIN SUBWAY IS URGED BY CODMAN

Advocating extension of the Washington st. subway from North station along the Charles River to Cottage Farm bridge, William Coombs Codman offered a new basin traffic plan today for public consideration.

In an open letter, Mr. Codman says:

"Now that the Harriman bill for enlargement of the embankment around the Charles river basin has passed the Legislature, I suggest the following transportation plan for criticism of the public and experts:

"There should be better opportunity for reaching Basin Park and what I propose will not only give this facility but be far-reaching in its usefulness to hundreds of thousands of commuters.

"I propose that the Washington st. subway be extended from the North Station to the embankment, a distance of only 1600 feet, under the embankment around the east and south shores to beyond the Cottage Farm Bridge, coming to the surface on Commonwealth ave. There should be stations at Cambridge st., Dartmouth st. and near Massachusetts ave.

"There would be no sewers and other pipes to move, which is a large expense in most subways, and the earth excavated from Nashua st. could be used to fill. Grade could gro worse the subway and there would be no obstruction to the view. There would be no financings or property damages.

"At the same time or later the East Boston subway could be extended from Chambers st. under Cambridge st. and connected with the proposed Embankment subway, a distance of only 1500 feet. This plan would harmonize with a comprehensive plan for the entire city which I visualize for a 50-year program. The cost, besides being low, would be paid for in time in the usual manner. It would relieve the growing overcrowding of the Boylston st. subway and Park square station.

"I should be interested to hear pros and cons on the above plan before going into more detail."

Leavenworth Guard Killed by Convict

Leavenworth, Kan., June 20 (INS)—The federal penitentiary here was set into an uproar today when one of the prisoners attacked and killed the foreman of the prison laundry plant by striking him on the head with an iron pipe. R. G. Warnke, 40, Leavenworth, the foreman, was at work when Carl Pantran, under 25-year sentence from Washington, struck him.

FIRE SHOTS IN WILD PURSUIT

Following an auto chase through Lexington in which five shots were fired, Samuel Gregory, 37, of New York, was arrested at the Lexington station of the Boston & Maine Railroad today as he waited for a Boston train.

The arrest was brought about by Station Agent Edward F. Murphy, who became suspicious and notified Chief of police James Sullivan.

According to the police, Gregory was seen on Massachusetts ave., near the Arlington line, driving at high speed. Patrolman George Smith of the Lexington police attempted to stop him, but the car shot by and the officer narrowly escaped being run down.

OFFICER GIVES CHASE.

Leaping into his own machine, parked nearby, Smith gave chase, firing five shots. At the end of two miles the fleeing driver turned sharply into the estate of Dr. James Barnes in Lexington Center, but not overturning.

The driver, apparently uninjured, scrambled out and, followed by Smith, ran to a fence on the B. & M. tracks, leaped it and continued down the tracks to Fletcher st. There he found another car parked and, entering it, succeeded in getting away before the policeman caught up with him.

ARRESTED AT STATION.

Later a suspicious appearing man purchased a ticket from Agent Murphy, who notified Chief Sullivan. The chief arrested Gregory, who was identified by Officer Smith as the man he had chased.

The first machine, according to the police, was stolen from Harry Freiland of Wellington st., Roxbury, early today. The second car, which was found badly damaged in East Lexington, was the property of James Gott of Fletcher ave., Lexington.

Police say Gregory has a record and additional charges are expected to be placed against him.

20 Injured in Riot of Vienna Students

Vienna, June 20 (INS)—Five policemen and 15 students were injured today in a riot at Vienna University. The riot was staged by Nationalist students in protest against the disciplining of several of their number for attacks on Jewish students.

PLAN CAMPBELL PORTRAIT FOR LATIN SCHOOL

A portrait in oils of Patrick T. Campbell, for the past eight years headmaster of the Boston Latin School, will be presented to that institution by its alumni and undergraduates in recognition of his promotion to be assistant superintendent of schools in Boston.

This tribute to the popular mentor of the classical school in the Fens is announced in behalf of its alumni by Henry Pennypacker, former headmaster and now a member of the Harvard College staff, and by William A. Adler and Warren Reardon, representing, respectively, the class of 1929 and the lower grades in the school.

The portrait of Headmaster Campbell will be painted by Howard Smith, Newbury st. artist, a Boston Latin alumnus, for whom several Massachusetts governors and college notables have sat in the last decade. Headmaster Campbell was graduated from Boston Latin in 1883, was a member of the class of 1893 at Harvard and taught in Medford high school from 1893 till 1897.

In that year he became a junior master at Boston Latin, was appointed head of its history department in 1910 and rose to headmastership in 1920.

He is regarded as one of the founders of the present system of school athletics in Boston and originated the eligibility code.

He will be succeeded as headmaster by Joseph L. Powers, head of the department of mathematics at the school.

LEONARD RACES 500 FEET IN 75 SECONDS

Without spikes or starting blocks, Eddie ("Sea Spray") Leonard of O'Hara Brothers, whisked a 273-pound barrel of haddock 500 feet along the slippery Fish pier today in the smacking time of 1 minute 15 seconds—and never once floundered.

He beat out by a few shakes of a swordfish's tail, William J. Sullivan, fish loader and teamster for the J. Coyle Transportation Co., who footed home his haddock-loaded barrel in 2 minutes flat.

"Now bring on the ash-barrel champion, O'Connell," challenged Leonard at the finish, "and if he is dirt-track champion, let's see what he can do with his ashes on this scale-covered pavement.'

CROWD LOOKS ON

O'Connell is the ash barrel rolling champion of the city sanitary department who yesterday broke the world's dust-and-cinder record in Dutchman's alley in the South End.

With Tim ("Haddock") Sullivan of O'Hara Bros. as referee and with a throng of fishermen, fish handlers, fish buyers and just curious as audience Leonard and Sullivan lined up and weighed in with their barrels.

"Sea Spray" tipped the beam at 160 and Sullivan at 185 pounds. Haddock-filled, their barrels each weighed 273 pounds. Leonard registered as 32 years old, daylight saving time, and Sullivan as 50 this year.

Then they were off along the scaly granite-paved course toward the sea, and the thunder of their hooves and the slapping of the haddock drowned out everything.

CHALLENGES THE WORLD.

When it was all over, "Sea Spray" modestly declared:

"It was the haddock that did it. Never have I undertaken anything with haddock and been unsuccessful."

Then he challenged all barrel rollers, ash-barrel, beer-barrel, soap-grease-barrel, sugar-barrel and other varieties.

"And where is this guy Arthur Lisee of Providence, who made that original challenge championship, but who did a run-out yesterday when he was due to meet "Neddo" O'Connell in the ash tournament?" Leonard asked.

"Ask him where—and tell him I'll roll him anything in a barrel, fish, flesh or mashed potatoes."

O'Connell, Ash Champion, Challenged to Title Roll

Heated exception to the claim that "Neddo" O'Connell of the city sanitary service is the champion ash barrel roller was taken by Leonard, telephone him to the Boston Evening American by a friend of Ned Rowen of Dover st.

Rowen, his friend explained, is a member of Neddo's sanitary division ash crew and he has the backing of his inspector, Michael O'Brien, that he can escort an ash barrel farther and faster than any living man.

Ned Rowen will be in Baker's alley at Montgomery and Dartmouth sts. at 8 a. m. tomorrow, the friend declared, waiting for some rogue to arrive and say him nay—or he will even barrel roll against time.

ARLINGTON BAN ON 'ONE-ARM' DRIVING

Young men intending to drive their automobiles with one arm around the girl friend will do well to avoid Arlington. If they fail to heed this warning, they'll be likely to face a judge.

Two young men were convicted of that offense today in East Cambridge court. The charge read "operating an automobile in a manner to impede the proper operation of the automobile."

John T. Smith, 26, of Cranfield st., Dorchester, and Frank M. Poirier, 2s, Pembroke st., North Cambridge, were each arraigned by Arlington police on June 12.

Smith pleaded nolo to the charge and was assessed $5 costs. The charge was placed on file. Poirier pleaded guilty and had his case placed on file with the same amount of costs.

However, Traffic Officer Thomas R. White, who prosecuted the case, also had another count on Poirier. He said that Poirier was driving with one arm around the girl; that he was driving so slowly that he held up traffic, and that he was clothed in a bathing suit.

When White asked him for his driving license, Poirier couldn't find it in his pockets—because there are no pockets in his bathing suit. So he was also charged with operating without his license on his person. This charge was also placed on file and costs of $5 assessed.

White announced after the two convictions that there are eight more young men due for appearance in court on the same charge.

MAN HUB FETED NOW CALLED 'IMPOSTOR'

Announcement that steps are being taken to deport Tien-Lai Huang, feted in Boston last year as the "Chinese Lindbergh," but who is now declared to be an imposter, was made today.

Benjamin M. Day, United States commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, N. Y., said he had received complaints of "improper activities" of Huang and that every effort is being made to rid the country of his presence.

Huang hailed as the "Chinese good-will flier," said to have collected thousands of dollars from his fellow-countrymen for "the advancement of aviation in China," is now alleged to have been only a "soft song man" preying on the credulity of the public.

He is alleged to have fooled not only his own countrymen but notables throughout the country, succeeding in having photographs taken with such prominent persons as Lindbergh, Henry Ford and Edison.

FETED IN BOSTON

In a Stinson-Detroiter plane, on which he is said to have made only a first payment, Huang dropped into Boston last November and proceeded to create a splurge. "Major Tien Lai Huang, official air representative of the Chinese Republic," making a tour of this country, and was greeted by officials and prominent Chinese.

His plane, colorfully decorated with Chinese characters, dragons and quotations from the Chinese sages, bore the name, "Spirit of Canton," the wings being yellow, the imperial color, and the fuselage blue, the tint of heaven.

At a banquet tendered by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, various Chinese societies, and Chin D. Young, manager of the Symphony restaurant, and international amenities were exchanged by the speakers.

The "Chinese Lindbergh" extended invitations to officials, Chinese girl students and others to fly in his ship, but something always occurred to prevent them from being taken up.

NO SOLO FLIGHTS

He was also feted by aviators at the airport that Huang never did any solo flying, but always had a pilot. That pilot later severed his connection with Huang.

Posing as a graduate of both Columbia and Syracuse universities, Huang delivered many addresses, speaking grandly of the future of aviation in China and outlining with bold strokes the flight he said he planned from the Pacific coast to his native country.

His own countrymen in Boston were the first to become suspicious of his claims, however, and his short time Huang left the city for other fields. Eventually complaints against him prohibiting non-residents from digging.

CONSOLIDATED HIT AS SELLING ITSELF GAS

Atty. Wycliffe C. Marshall of Watertown today opposed the petition of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. for aproval of an annual contract for the purchase of gas from the New England Fuel & Transportation Co. at a hearing before the Public Utilities Comission.

Mr. Marshall claimed that the two companies, through an interlocking directorate, are one and the same organization. The same men, he argued, approve the contract for both corporations.

Atty. Richard H. Holt, for the gas company, pointed out that under the statutes his company is authorized to purchase gas only when the price is less than what it would cost the company to manufacture it.

"The contract we are asking you to approve will expire on June 1, 1930," he declared, "it is like the previous contract, provides that the purchase price shall be 31 cents a 1000 cubic feet and is for one year only.

"The only change in this contract is a provision requiring the fuel company to supply at least 56,000,00 cubic feet each calendar year, instead of 24,000,000 as in the last contract."

The president of the gas company, Dana Barnum, contended that it would cost his company 34.93 cents per 1000 cubic feet to manufacture the gas itself.

The commission took the matter under advisement.

LAUD ENGLISH DOCTORS AS 'MASTERS'

London, June 20 (INS)—English doctors are "masters of their art" in the opinion of 60 prominent American and Canadian physicians who are here today to begin a European post-graduate course in medicine and surgery.

After listening to their first lecture in one of London's famous hospitals, the traveling school, which includes two women, Dr. Mary Craig Williamson and Dr. Grace Sherwood, both specialists in women's and children's ailments, were unanimous in their praise.

"English lecturers on medicine and surgery never speak unless they are on top of their subject. They are masters," declared Prof. Singleton, head of the department of surgery in the University of Texas.

"In anatomy, chemistry, in various branches of medicine," he said, "you are much ahead of us. Your medical men are great and thorough scientists."

"I think, on the other hand, that we are more advanced in mechanics. An American surgeon will perform 10 or 12 operations in one morning, while an English surgeon would perform perhaps only four. That, I think, is due entirely to the equipment which we are entirely fortunate to possess."

RETRACTS PLEA OF GUILTY TO 'BRIBING' COP

A surprise was sprung in East Cambridge District Court today after a Harvard student and a Brookline man had pleaded guilty in a Harvard sq. traffic case.

Vivian Guy, 43, Brookline artist, fined $50 on an alleged attempt to bribe a police officer, told Justice Arthur P. Stone he had not realized the seriousness of the charge when he pleaded guilty and added that his plea was made on advice of a court officer.

Judge Stone then revoked the sentence imposed on Guy and his companion, Philip S. Moseley, Perkins Hall resident, who had been fined $15 on each of two counts—operating without a license and without having the registration of the automobile with him at the time of arrest.

The court asked Guy to point out the court officer that had advised him to plead guilty, but when Guy failed to do so, the judge continued the case until June 25 for a full hearing.

The men were arrested in Harvard sq. by Traffic Officer Edward Glennon, who testified Moseley had no license to operate and no registration in the auto.

He further testified that Guy got out of the machine, threw his arms around the officer's neck and said: "Be a good fellow; buy yourself a drink; I put 50 cents in your pocket."

Glennon told the court he disengaged himself from Guy and found the money in his pocket. Thereupon he placed Guy as well as Moseley under arrest.

WIFE IS TO SUE GIRL WRITER OF 'RAMONA'

New York, June 20 (INS)—While Mabel Wayne was sharing royalties for lines like "Ramona, I need you, my own," in her famous song, she had no right to be sharing another woman's husband with a line like "Benny, I need you, my own," an indignant wife declared today.

So Mrs. Benjamin Shiverts today prepared to make a little trouble for "Ramona's" creator by drawing up an allenation of affections suit for $100,000 against Miss Wayne.

And through her attorney, she started divorce suit proceedings against husband Benjamin.

Mrs. Shiverts cited another line of the jin-famed song:

"O, I dread the dawn, when I awake to find you gone——"

Miss Wayne and Shiverts both have been served with summonses in the suits, Mrs. Shiverts said, although the papers have not yet been filed in court.

It is also reported that Shiverts presented to Mabel a 12-karat Kimberly diamond. This was after Miss Wayne was divorced last fall from C. Julian Harrison in Chicago. Mrs. Shiverts was reported to have claimed.

Miss Wayne, it was reported, was going to Hollywood to do a theme song for a new picture.

Cite Playwright for Contempt of Court

New York, June 20 (INS)—Richard Walton Tully, playwright, today was scheduled to appear in Supreme Court to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court for "willful" failure to assign all his contracts and rights for royalties for the stage or film production of the play, "The Bird of Paradise," to Mrs. Grace A. Fendler of Los Angeles. Some time ago Mrs. Fendler obtained a judgment against Tully of more than $800,000 for plagiarism of her novel, "In Hawaii."

SLAYING NEWS CURES MUTE

The mysterious shots which stilled the voice of Fred M. Urquhart, 38, of Marcella st., Roxbury, and left the man and his wife and three small children brought back the power of speech to a 12-year-old girl who lives in the third-floor tenement of the Marcella st. house, it was revealed today.

Stricken with a severe nervous malady, Theresa Gallagher had been practically mute for four months preceding the night of June 16, the date on which Urquhart was found dying from bullet wounds in an alley in the rear of his home.

The shock of the discovery of his body, the consequent descent of a police squad to investigate the shooting and the neighborhood excitement, all combined to effect a strange reaction on the girl and suddenly restored her lost vocal powers.

Warren, in Senate 36 Years, Going Big at 85

Washington, June 20—Francis E. Warren, dean of Congress, who has served longer in the Senate than any other man in history, today celebrated his 85th birthday to a shower of felicitations from every corner of the continent.

Having served 36 years, 6 months and 28 days as a Senator from Wyoming, Warren is still "going strong" and hopes to round out 40 years—four full decades—in the Senate.

Born in 1844 and a holder of public office since 1885, Warren's career has covered a period in American history from the Civil War to the present.

He saw the railroad displace the stage-coach, the automobile supplant the buggy and now the aeroplane threaten the supremacy of both train and motor car. He saw electric lights, refrigerators, telephones and even bath-tube come into general use. There was only a single telephone in the Capitol when he entered the Senate and the chamber was illuminated by gas.

Today, he said, his greatest pleasure had been watching the development of the country; and his greatest thrill, experienced in the Civil War.

Lutherans See Divorce as Great U. S. Peril

River Forest, Mo., June 20 (AP)—Companionate marriage, increase in divorce, birth control and decrease in marriage were condemned at the triennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri Synod.

It was pointed out that at the present rate of increase divorces in the United States would end one-fourth of all marriages by 1950 and by 1990 the rate would be one-half.

"The Lutheran church calls for a halt in the social breakdown, in which marriage has become a matter of mere convenience, to be discarded at will and for a series of excuses not in the Bible," declared Rev. Paul Lindemann, St. Paul, editor of the Lutheran American.

The growing economic independence of women was ascribed by the Rev. Martin Walker of Buffalo as the outstanding external factor in the decreased marriage rate and the increased divorce rate.

"The chief factor is the loss of religion," he said.

In remedying conditions, the Rev. Mr. Walker recommended greater uniformity in marriage and divorce laws and more strictness in issuing marriage licenses.

Pointing out that increasing divorce rate usually was accompanied by a decreasing birth rate, synod officials "protested the unscriptural but rampantly popular method of birth control, and point to broken lives, shattered homes, blasted hopes and the score of physical and spiritual complications which follow in the wake of such unnatural practices."

4 Fined for Digging Clams Near Quincy

Found guilty of digging clams illegally on the Quincy shore, three Dorchester men and a Quincy resident were fined $20 each today by Judge Nash in Quincy. They are Glen Marshfield, 23, of Johnson pl., Dorchester; Antonio Allegro of Franklin st., Dedham, and two brothers, Charles and Vincent Vinson of Vernon st., Dorchester. The State Department of Health recently lifted a ban on the Quincy-town section of Quincy, where the four defendants were arrested, but a city ordinance prohibits non-residents from digging.

2 Killed, 17 Felled by Mysterious Gas

El Paso, Tex., June 20 (INS)—A cloud of gas of mysterious origin today enveloped a section of Mexican children dead and 17 persons unconscious as a result, five miles east of El Paso. All of the victims were brought to the El Paso County Hospital. Some thought the gas cloud was a heavy accumulation of fumes from the refineries which concentrated owing to a lack of breeze. Horses, goats, chickens, cats and dogs were found dead after the cloud had dispelled.

MORGAN POWER MERGER PLAN ANNOUNCED

New York, June 20 (INS)—Details of the $650,000,000 merger of upper New York state public utility properties into the new Niagara Hudson Power Corporation were announced today. The new corporation, backed by J. P. Morgan & Co. interests, will take over, through an exchange of stocks, the Buffalo Niagara & Eastern Power Corporation, Mohawk Hudson Power and the Northeastern Power Corporation.

Niagara Hudson Power, in addition to the stock to be acquired under the exchange offers, will issue for an aggregate consideration of $50,000,000 in cash, according to the announcement, 2,000,000 shares of common stock, Class A 15-year warrants to purchase 2,000,000 shares of common stock at $35 a share and options to purchase at any time within five years from December 1, 1929, an additional amount of 2,250,000 common shares and Class A 15-year option warrants to purchase 750,000 shares of common stock at $35 a unit.

The unit will consist of one share of common stock and a Class A 15-year option warrant to purchase one-third of one share of common stock. The announcement further revealed that Niagara Hudson Power will make a separate offer to acquire all outstanding option warrants of Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation.

Newton Women Aid Italian Fiesta

Asserts Prohibition Has Cut U. S. Wealth 135 Billions

| Year. | Totals of National Wealth. |
|---|---|
| 1920 | $471,650,000,000 |
| 1921 | 312,192,000,000 |
| 1922 | 320,805,000,000 |
| 1923 | 353,875,000,000 |
| 1924 | 331,437,000,000 |
| 1925 | 335,177,000,000 |
| 1926 | 347,471,000,000 |

NEVER QUESTIONED

These figures reveal, that even ignoring 1920, the total increase between 1921 and 1927, inclusive, has been only 24 billions, regarded as merely a normal rate of increase of about four billions annual average. From 1925 to the beginning of 1928 national wealth dropped 19 billions.

What proportions of the Methodist board's alleged 72 billion increase in American wealth under prohibition has been due to the hundreds of millions made annually in alcohol and illicit bootleg profits naturally is not set forth in the Pickett figures, nor is this source of new wealth indicated in the Industrial Conference figures.

The National Industrial Conference Board's information is derived from sources and by methods that have never been questioned, unless by Doris Pickett and the Anti-Saloon League. Twenty-eight affiliated bodies comprise the conference, including the steel, silk, cotton, automobile, tobacco, electric, gas, paper, leather, wool and many other associations, as well as the National Association of Manufacturers. Four branches of the United States Government are also included in the organization.

EXPLAINS FIGURES

Among its controllers are former President Calvin Coolidge, Charles E. Hughes, Owen D. Young, Charles M. Schwab, Paul M. Warburg, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, Rene Du Pont, Julius Rosenwald, Eugene M. Grace, President Emeritus Hadley of Yale, Leonor F. Loree, Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the United States Steel, and H. H. Westinghouse.

Its chairman is Charles Cheney, president of Cheney Brothers, silk manufacturers, and its executive committee numbers some of the best known business men of the United States.

The Industrial Conference Board informed the Boston Evening American that its figures on national wealth, which go even beyond the federal census, are calculated according to the subjoined statement:

"If the value of the national wealth reported at each date by the census bureau is divided by the index of wholesale prices of the same date, the result is a series of figures in which the total is valued at 1913 prices or, as it is sometimes expressed, in '1913 dollars.' With the wealth of 1912 and that of 1922 so expressed, and upon the assumption of a uniform rate of increase between the two dates, the wealth of intervening years at 1913 prices may be estimated.

MODEST GROWTH

"The physical wealth probably did not increase year by year with the mathematical regularity, but in the absence of any exact information, such regularity is the only available hypothesis. The margin of error in any one year can not be very great, however, for, as will be seen later, the growth so computed for the decade is a very modest one.

"If the national wealth at 1913 prices is to be estimated for the years after 1922, the assumption must be made that the rate of increase noted between 1913 and 1922 holds good for the period which has elapsed since the latter year. By the methods indicated, it is then possible to arrive at a series of estimates, which in our table covers the years 1913 to 1927, in which all the elements of the national wealth are valued at 1913 prices.

This series, however, is only a step in estimating the national wealth of each year. At any given time the wealth of the nation would be expressed in the dollars then current, not in conventional dollars based upon 1913 prices. The series which was calculated must be multiplied by the price index to express it at current valuation."

It was learned that the 1928 figures on national wealth will not be available for another month. They may show a deviation of from 3 to 5 per cent up or down from the 1927 figures.

44 CONVICTS IN ESCAPE; 2 SHOT

Brazoria, Texas, June 20 (AP)—Forty-four convicts kidnaped three guards at the Clements State Prison farm near here early today and escaped.

A few hours later three had been recaptured, two of them after they had been shot by a cattleman living near the farm.

The others are believed to have scattered and fled through the dense underbrush of the Brazos river bottoms.

FLIERS AGAIN TRY FOR RECORD

Minneapolis, June 20 (AP)—Gene Shank and Owen J. Haugland, local aviators, today were sailing between Minneapolis, Northfield, and Hastings in a flight which they hoped would beat the world's airplane endurance record of 172 hours. Several hours after the flight started at the Wold Chamberlain airport here at 2:35 p. m. yesterday, the aviators ran into a severe thunderstorm which threatened to end their second attempt to set a record.

WIFE TELLS OF DESERTION

Testifying in her suit for divorce in Middlesex Probate Court, Mrs. Ida James, LaGrange pl., Roxbury, said that before her child was born, her husband told her that "only commoners have babies." After the baby's birth, the wife said, her husband took them to Canada and abandoned them there without funds.

Mrs. James told the court that she married George James, Medford contractor, in 1927. On one occasion, she said, he picked up the infant and threatened to throw it out a window. Relatives supplied her with money that she might return from Canada, she said.

Judge Arthur E. Beane granted Mrs. James a decree nisi of divorce, custody of her child and maintenance of $5 a week.

Sisters Win in Suit Over Taking of Land

Fitchburg, June 20—The Misses Emma A. and Bernice I. Goodfellow, sisters, of this city, were awarded $3,416.66 by a jury in the superior civil court, in their damage suit against the city of Leominster.

The suit grew out of the taking of land bordering Wanoosnoc brook by the city of Leominster for a municipal water supply improvement.

Retail Food Prices Show Increase of One Per Cent

Washington, June 20 (AP)—Retail food prices in the United States showed an increase on May 15 of a little more than one per cent over the previous month and a decrease of about one-third of one per cent since May 15, 1928.

Reports made public today by the Department of Labor revealed that 19 staple food products increased in price in the month from April 15 to May 15, and that 10 articles decreased.

Woman Rescues 5 From Drowning

Rutland, Vt., June 20—The coolheadedness of a woman saved her husband and daughter and three members of another family from a drowning accident similar to the tragedy which overtook the Boardman family at Randolph, Mass.

Mrs. Ryan saw her husband, child, and friends drowning before her eyes. Instead of joining in a hopeless struggle she seized a long pole lying on the bank and succeeded in pulling all of them to shore. Four of the five had to be revived by artificial respiration.

BOY'S REACH TO HIP FATAL

Worcester, June 20—The fact that John Vaskavich, 19, of 65 Endicott st. reached into a hip pocket to throw away 14 cigars, the total loot from a store break, cost him his life in the City Hospital.

He died from gangrene which developed from a bullet wound inflicted by a shot which Patrolman John D. Kelley of the local police department fired when he thought the youth was in the act of drawing a revolver while being pursued through an alley following the store break.

Chief Thomas F. Foley classed the death of the young man as "unfortunate" and brought no action against the officer.

Liner Waits for Girl to Obtain Permit

The North German Liner Karlsruhe was held up more than 30 minutes at Commonwealth Pier, when Miss Katie Conroy of Roxbury, sailing for Ireland, did not have her return permit to this country. A tug boat took her across the harbor in the immigration station to adjust the matter.

MAGIC NAMES

IN every field of business there are names, a few only, that say, in their few syllables, all that can be told about the genuine excellence of the product they identify... and adorn. From motor cars to bath towels, from diamond rings to safety razors, from hats to shoes, there are these names fraught with the strange magic of business integrity and success.

To many thousands the thought of fine shoes invariably brings the name of James Coward. This is no sudden achievement. It began, painstakingly and slowly, sixty three years ago when a serious young man first opened a tiny shop downtown on sunny Greenwich Street under the proud sign, "James Coward, Shoemaker." It has continued through the decades and generations until now it is a widespread faith among people who want excellence in the shoes they wear.

And just as that first James Coward never disappointed that trust, so is there no possibility of any lapse from the men who have carried forward his business, and his standards, and his name. For today, though there are three great stores instead of that one small personal shop, stores that are the largest retail shoe stores in the world, there has been no basic change in the fundamental attitudes of the entire business.

It is still our purpose to make the best, most comfortable shoes that can be made, and to offer them at the fairest prices that can be reached. That was the simple, honest purpose of the James Coward who started the business. That was why he speedily built himself a solid, respected success. That, we sincerely believe, is why we have been able to carry on that success in ever greater measure.

2 SAILORS HELD IN KNIFE FIGHT AT REVERE

Following a clash with civilians and police at Revere Beach, in which one civilian was severely slashed, two sailors attached to the U. S. S. Iwana, a naval tug, were arraigned in Chelsea court today and held under bail for trial.

The fray is said by police to have started when a Revere youth insulted a girl companion of James Jennings of North Carolina, fireman, first class, aboard the Iwana.

Jennings pleaded not guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon and pleaded guilty to being drunk. Bail for him was set at $1000.

James E. Bosrdman, 22, of Dakota st, Dorchester, seaman, pleaded not guilty to assault and battery and bail was fixed at $100. Chief Petty Officer William Peets went bond for them.

Michael Lardelo, 20, of Ocean ave., Revere, who was slashed on the neck and arms, is reported recovering at Massachusetts General Hospital but he will be a patient for several days and for that reason the cases of the two sailors were continued until July 3.

The sailors, together with a third who was not held, are said by police to have battled with the civilians and policemen until the three Revere youths were all prostrate on the ground.

They then submitted to arrest.

The fight had assumed the aspect of an old-fashioned rough-and-tumble, with a large crowd looking on, when Patrolmen Philip Gallo and William Kelley of Revere reached the scene.

Lardelo's companions identified themselves as Dominick Devoto, 23 of Cleveland st., Revere, and Joseph Zizza, 22, of Revere st.

PARENTS PROUD OF 'FLAG GIRL'

'GEORGIA PEACH' OFF FOR FLAG WORLD TOUR

Byromville Ga., June 20—A tired but happy school girl today turned eyes and glistened with joy on the vision of wonderous travels in distant lands. Alma Elizabeth Grove, Georgia's national flag champion, brought her brief return visit home to a conclusion with reluctance. The dark-eyed 16-year-old girl said:

"Everyone has been wonderful to me and it is so hard to leave."

She left Byromville for Salisbury, N. C., to join Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, the national flag chaperon on the world trip.

Alma's triumph has brought to this little village and to all middle Georgia one of the greatest thrill it has experienced. The departure for her world trip came almost as quickly as her arrival.

Yesterday she cooked fudge for girl chums, swam, helped pack peaches in her father's packing plant, played nine holes of golf, skimmed the pages of a few travel books and motored to the nearby county seat of Vienna to bid her friends goodby.

Blackstone to Escape From Box in Harbor

Harry Blackstone, magician, appearing this week at Loew's Orpheum Theater, will attempt an escape tomorrow at 1 p. m. from a huge packing case, in which he will be lowered into the harbor channel at Congress st. bridge, opposite South Station. The stunt is in response to a challenge from the J. W. Brine sporting goods company, whose employees will construct the wooden box, bind Blackstone securely hand and foot, place him in the receptacle and then nail and rope it. While submerged Blackstone intends to escape unaided and without damaging the box.

Roxbury Autoist Is Given Jail Sentence

Arthur E. Fineman of Sterling st., Roxbury, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction, and fined $20 for reckless driving and going away after an accident without making himself known in the Quincy district court by Judge Avery. He appealed and was held in $600 bonds. The arraignment followed an automobile collision on Blue Hill ave., Milton, June 9, when three persons were thrown from a sedan which was struck by a truck alleged to have been operated by Freeman.

MacDonald Returns to London in Plane

Hendon, Eng., June 20 (AP)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald arrived at Hendon airdrome, just outside of London, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, returning from his vacation at Lossiemouth, Scotland, to take up his official duties as head of the new Labor government. He made the entire trip from Lossiemouth by airplane, with a stop at Catterick Camp, Yorkshire, for luncheon.

Posse Hunts Negro Who Killed Officer

Houston, Tex., June 20 (INS)—A large posse of officers and citizens were searching a woods seven miles west of Houston today for a negro who shot and killed Constable J. M. Weaver of Addicks, near here. Weaver was shot from ambush after he and his son raided a negro speakeasie outside the city last night.

FITCHBURG IS HARDEST HIT BY STORM

Fitchburg, June 20—Early escaping death by lightning, scores of residents of Fitchburg and surrounding communities were endangered again through fires caused in their homes by the bolts.

The storm, one of the most violent that ever visited the central part of the state, destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of property and cut off telephone, telegraph and electric light service.

Fitchburg was hardest hit, but there was considerable damage caused in Lunenburg, Townsend and other towns.

ROUSED FROM BED.

Burt Harrington, 65, asleep in his Pearl Hill rd. home, was awakened by a lightning bolt that struck the house, but before he had time to get out of bed flames had begun to sweep the room. Just as he reached the door the ceiling crashed. His home was destroyed with a $10,000 loss.

When lightning entered the Lunenburg telephone exchange and played around the switchboard tended by Miss Nathalie Nicholson, the keeper out of danger, but the control and switchboards were damaged.

A group of 2300-volt wires were torn from electric light poles in the storm and sputtered in the Lunenburg street for nearly an hour.

FIREMEN RUSHED.

Lightning struck the steeple of the Congregational Church in Lunenburg, shattering it and also damaging the roof and interior. Fires discovered after the electric storm had passed kept the harassed fire department busy in widely separated parts of the city. The flames in each instance were believed to have been caused by lightning bolts.

In a garage blaze on High st., several automobiles were damaged but the building was saved.

HEATING PLANT BURNS.

Fire also broke out early today in the heating plant of the Fitchburg Normal School. The boiler room had been hit by a lightning bolt which had torn through a conduit to the Edgerly school property, breaking windows and toppling ceilings there.

Class of '62 Reduced to One; Reunion Off

Yonkers, N. Y., June 20 (INS)—John E. Andrus, 89, noted capitalist, who gained fame because of his prowess for swinging on a subway strap to and from his business instead of motoring, announced today that the reunion of the class of 1862 of Wesleyan University, which he had planned for this month, will not take place. Mr. Andrus is the sole survivor of the class.

The Rev. James M. Caldwell of Sharon, Pa., who for some years was the only other living member of the class, died some time ago.

Train Jumps Track as Switch Splits

Providence, June 20—An inbound Wickford local carrying nearly 100 passengers was derailed near Bruton ave. when an engine and two cars traveling over a newly laid tracks split a switch and jumped the rails.

Thomas McHugh, fireman, jumped and was slightly injured. Every wheel on the engine and both cars left the tracks and the train swerved around so that it blocked main track and two side tracks.

New Regent

Miss Marianne J. Collins of Revere will be honored at reception in recognition of her election as State regent of Catholic Daughters of America.

EXPECT 400 AT RECEPTION TO STATE REGENT

Catholic Daughters of America from all over the state will gather in Revere tonight when Court James Lee will tender a reception to Miss Marianne J. Collins, newly elected state regent of the order.

Four hundred members and guests are expected to be present at Revere City Hall where the reception and dinner will take place. Unusual interest has been aroused in the affair since Miss Collins is the first Revere girl to hold the highest office in the organization.

Miss Collins is a member of Court James Lee and was its first grand regent. She has been closely identified with the state activities of the order for several years. Until her election to the state regency a few weeks ago she had served a term as vice-state regent.

Among the invited guests are Governor Allen, Senator Walsh, Mayor and Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Supreme Regent Mary Agnes Kane, Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, Representative Augustine Tirella and Thomas F. Carroll, Rev. William R. Finnegan, state chaplain, and all the officers connected with the churches in Revere and Beachmont.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Lee is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

WALTHAM ALSO WILL PROTEST BRIDGE COST

The city of Waltham will join other Greater Boston communities in a protest against the apportionment of the cost of the construction of the Cottage Farm bridge, according to Mayor Henry F. Beal of the Watch city.

The objections of the city to the payment of the assessment as levied by the board of commissioners appointed to make the apportionment will be based on the contention that Waltham derives no particular benefit from the bridge, Mayor Beal said. Waltham's share of the cost is estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000.

The towns of Brookline, Wellesley, Milton and Belmont have already entered objections to the allowance of the commissioners' report in the Supreme Court, where the document was filed.

Held for Stealing His Father's Car

Cranston, R. I., June 20—Charged with stealing his father's automobile from a garage in Johnston, Anthony De Lilis, 13, was held in $1000 bail for the grand jury when he pleaded guilty in district court.

Police say that the youth, who has been living at home for three months, went to the garage early today and stole the car. He was later seen in Cranston by his sister. She immediately got in touch with Johnston police, who relayed

Sir Esme to Give Mrs. Gann Seat of Honor

Washington, June 20 (AP)—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, official vice-presidential hostess, whose social rank was disputed several weeks ago, tonight will be the honored guest of the dean of the diplomatic corps.

She will be seated on the right of her host, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador. She will outrank diplomats, cabinet members and cousins. Sir Esme has invited about 40 guests, in honor of Vice-President Curtis, Mrs. Gann and Mr. Gann, to the last entertainment at the embassy this summer.

A social secretary at the embassy said the ambassador had not yet made known any decision as to where Mr. Gann shall be placed. Vice-President Curtis will have the place of honor beside the hostess, Lady Isabella.

TROTZKY SEEKS OLD U. S. JOB

Constantinople, June 20 (AP)—Reports were current here today that Leon Trotzky, exiled former Soviet war chief, would apply soon for permission to enter the United States.

Before making formal application to the American State Department, it was said, Trotzky will get in touch with the American Federation of Labor to obtain its consent, assigning as a reason desire to resume publication of the Russian journal, Novy Mir, which he published in New York in 1914.

There were reports also that the Turkish authorities have waived the original time limit on his stay and will permit him to settle here permanently.

French Flier's Wife Is Bound for Paris

New York, June 20 (AP)—Mrs. Jean Assolant, wife of the pilot of the Yellow Bird, transatlantic airplane sailed today on the Ile de France to join her husband in Paris.

Others on board the liner as it sailed were Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and Princess Cantacuzene, granddaughter of General Grant.

Boy Scout Camp to Be Mortgaged

A special meeting of Minute Man Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held in Unity Hall, Waltham, this evening for the purpose of authorizing a mortgage of $5000 on the council's property at Camp Barker. The funds will be used for the payment of debts of the camp. Minute Man Council comprises troops of Watertown, Waltham, Wellesley and Concord.

Charlestown Whist Party for Convent

A whist party for the Sisters of St. Mary convent of Charlestown will be given next Thursday in the parish house, Winthrop st, Charlestown. Fred Von and Dick White are active on the committee and have the cooperation of a large number of parishioners.

Tools Show Man at Lake Constance 10,000 Years Ago

Berlin, June 19 (INS)—Important discoveries indicating that primitive man lived in the region of Lake Constance more than 10,000 years ago have been made by Dr. Reinerth, professor at the Prehistoric Research Institute of Tuebingen.

Heretofore the log dwellings of Lake Constance, dating to about 3000 B. C., were considered as the first manifestation of man in that region.

The discoveries consist of tools and household articles made of flint and stone, whose position and character are accepted as evidence of their antiquity.

GET NEW PLANE FOR ROME HOP

New York, June 20 (AP)—The New York Times today said Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and Robert G. Williams, whose place, the Green Flash, was wrecked in an attempt to take off for Rome from Old Orchard Beach on June 13, have obtained the Bellanca monoplane North Star from Mrs. James J. Stillman. They expect to make another start within a week, it was said.

The plane is a sister ship of the Green Flash, and has a new engine with less than 500 hours of actual flight. Tanks were put in for a non-stop flight from Roosevelt Field to the Canal Zone last winter, in which Yancey was to have been the navigator.

ALL SOCIETY OUT FOR BIG MEET AT RACELAND

John Macomber Is Host at His Private Framingham Track

THERE'S NOTHING ON THE social calendar that could bring out that portion of society spelled with a capital S on a sizzling hot day like the final horse race events at Framingham. And the important ones, with purses to supply any comfort despite the weather, yesterday chose to take their sun tan at Raceland. What cared Mrs. Sumner Pingree, for instance, that Old Sol burned her cheeks when her Edify won the coveted Raceland gold cup for Flying Horse Farm. She was dancing with delight when her colors touched the tape ahead of all others in the chief event of the day. She typifies the spirit of the meet.

THERE WAS AN INFORMALITY about the Raceland gallery that pleased John Macomber, the host unanimously. For the pleasure he had provided a setting magnificent in its beauty and completeness. Thousands made themselves at home under the gayly striped umbrellas and tents that shaded tables where society sipped iced refreshments between races. At one of these, Mrs. Fitzwilliams Sargent of Philadelphia and Mrs. Robert Pope of Asheville, N. C., sat with Miss Louise Condit and Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Jr., of Boston, and Mrs. Charles Cushman and Mrs. John G. Butler of Pomfret, Ct. Miss Eugenia and Miss Ann Frothingham, Miss Betty Bird, Miss Dorothy Neyhart, Miss Betty Barrel were among the enthusiastic trailhirds.

HOVERING CLOSE TO THE rails as the Master's plate was won by Land Boy was Mrs. Augustus Goodwin in a becoming red chiffon print, with Mrs. Price Mc-Kinney of Cleveland and Mrs. Victor Emanuel of Long Island. Land Boy won this plate last year also. Mrs. Truman Saunders of Newport came up to see the victory for the Goodwin colors as the coveted plate was given over to Mr. Goodwin to add to his already large collection of trophies this season. Louis B. Liggett was among the group with eyes for nothing but the footwork of the favorites on the track. Seen with him was Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman and John F. Fitzgerald, talking horses.

THAT CLEVER YOUNG HORSEWOMAN, Miss Anne Danforth, and her younger sister, Miss Marjorie, appeared in thrifty chiffons almost for the first time this summer, since their usual costumes are riding togs at horse events. Virginia Tolman and her mother, Mrs. Harold Tolman, were up from the North Shore. One missed that ever-present race fan, Miss Frances Goodwin, yesterday, when illness kept her at Hamilton. Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Mrs. Richard E. Danielson, Henry G. Vaughan in his pearl gray topper and cane, the genial Mr. Shaw and B. Nason Hamlin's familiar gray bowler were integral parts of the moving picture of interest centered on John R. Macombers's private track.

THERE ARE WAYS AND WAYS of planning for comfort in a tremendous throng but the experienced ones who have seldom missed the historic contest between John Harvard and the Yale Rowing crews at New London are up and away early for position at the finish tomorrow. Some there are who trust to trains and luck to arrive on time but others have already anchored private yachts in the growing forest of sails dotting the Thames above the bridge. The good Queen Mab, luxurious seagoing yacht of the Horace Binneys, is already en route to New London with the exact spot in mind for dropping her anchor.

DOUBTLESS THE CONSTELLATION, skippered by her best M. Sears, will be among those who have not missed the Crimson-Blue contest for many years. The Everett Morss pleasure craft, too, may be expected from Marblehead waters with a host of others departing under sail or steam power for the most thrilling annual battle in the ancient feud between America's oldest colleges. Boston's first families are well represented in the capacity reservations made by the Hotel Griswold, mecca of society from every corner of the country tomorrow.

Miss Peggy Hinckley Mrs. Phillip Strong

Miss Peggy Hinckley and Mrs. Phillip Strong were of the smart set that saw final races at Raceland, Framingham.

KHAKI SHIRTS AND TROUSERS, heavy boots, man size handkerchiefs and western sombreros are among the wardrobes being planned by five popular young society girls for their summer outing this season. Miss Marion Duane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Duane of Manchester Cove, is to be one of the party determined to have real ranch experience before repairing for the fall season in society in the autumn. The J. Y Ranch in Wyoming is the destination of Miss Duane. Miss Barbara Proctor of Swampscott, Miss Edith Morrison of Boston, and Misses Helen and Mary Curtis of Concord. The girls leave for the West on July 27.

U. S. TALKIES RUIN BRITISH INDUSTRY

London, June 20 (INS)—American talking and sound pictures have killed the British film industry. Within the past year shareholders in British film companies have lost more than seven and a half million dollars.

Production work is generally at a standstill and the famous quota act, passed to stem the invasion of American pictures, has proved useless.

Statistics show that England's film industry has suffered a more severe blow than any of her industries in the last generation, and it is believed it will take at least five years to put it back on its feet.

While English producers have been arguing whether or not the talkie was going to be popular, American sound pictures have invaded every "big time" movie house in London and crushed the silent film industry to the ground.

PRESBYTERIANS OPEN BOSTON CONFERENCE

Delegates representing more than 43,000,000 Christians are attending the council of the Presbyterian Alliance in Boston this week.

Prominent ministers and lay leaders representing evangelical groups in England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, Jugoslavia, Hungary, South Africa, Australia, the Hebrides and other parts of the world are present at the council, which is held every four years.

Today's session will open with devotional exercises conducted by the Rev. Charles Merle d'Aubigne of Paris, president of the council. He will also deliver an address later in the day and reports of committees will be heard. The council sermon, "The Gospel of God," will be delivered by the Rev. Malcolm James McLeod this evening.

That prohibition is working and that all it needs is a little co-operation from other nations, was asserted by the Rev. Dr. Robert Watson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, in his address of welcome to the delegates. He said:

"Prohibition is successful here. Now all we want is the co-operation of other nations. And we are never going to rest until the whole world follows us.

"International good-will is also needed in order to obtain peace. War must cease. I believe a very forward step is the conference being held between our envoy in England, Charles G. Dawes, and Premier MacDonald of England.

"Presbyterianism is waxing in New England than anywhere else. It isn't because we weren't here early, but because we have built for other denominations. We have definite work to do, although we are feeble folk here and we are expecting great things from this visit."

Child Welfare Drive Planned by Clubs

DEVOTED to perfect child life in the community, the clubwomen of the country plan to work more intensively with dependent and delinquent children in the fall as part of the enlarged program of the General Federation's department of child welfare, under the leadership of Mrs. Frank Ellis Humphrey of Reno, Nev., chairman.

Mrs. John F. Sippel

to enable mothers to care for their own children whenever possible.

If juvenile delinquency is to be alleviated and remedied then those factors, most important in its prevention must be brought about, Mrs. Humphrey says.

"There must be good health, normal home, education, recreation, normal industry, moral and spiritual training," she explained recently. The program has the endorsement of Mrs. John F. Sippel, General Federation president.

The association of fine men and women must be encouraged and an ideal presented to them, if possible.

For the dependent child, the nation's clubwomen hope to bring about a home for every child, a child for every home, segregation from delinquents, the abolishment of orphanages, cottage homes of not more than 12 inmates where normal boarding homes cannot be secured, adequate mother's aid to enable mothers to care for their own children whenever possible.

These are but scattered plans in a comprehensive program to be outlined in the fall by the department for the work of the clubwoman along juvenile rehabilitation lines.

"It is less expensive to maintain children in normal homes than in orphanages when we consider money invested in buildings," Mrs. Humphrey pointing out. "Greatest happiness to child comes through normal home. A contented, happy child means a good citizen later.

"It is easy to believe that our clubwomen are really bending their efforts in a direction that means much to children. Surely in no other land do we find women more interested or doing better work than in our own country.

"Let us stress this year keeping the child well that we might always be cognizant of the fact that he is growing, that he has good school attendance, that he is being taught thrift and industry, that he is enjoying recreation, and good home conditions. Let us stress further perfect birth registration, better conditions for sub-normal and otherwise handicapped children."

MEDICAL SCHOLARSHIP LOAN

Offered by the General Federation, Miss Cora Clinksacles of Greenville, S. C., is the successful applicant this year. She is a senior at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C. The first "Loan Girl" is Miss Edythe Hershey, who has completed her course and is now serving as interne, in the Jewish Hospital Brooklyn, N. Y.

The loan is available every four years and any young woman aspiring to become a doctor may apply.

LADIES HELPING HAND AUXILIARY

On July 1, this organization will open the camp purchased recently for boys and a month later will reopen it for girls.

The Home for Jewish Children in Canterbury st., Dorchester, is maintained by this large group of Boston women and the camp is an added activity. Mrs. Samuel Altman is president.

MASS. ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN LAWYERS

Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio Supreme Court is expected as a guest at a reception and tea to be held at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, June 23, and given in honor of the Kappa Beta Phi legal sorority delegates to the convention which is being held in Boston this week. Miss Marie L. Reynolds president of the association, will receive, assisted by the executive board.

MASS. WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The first in a series of "Current Events" garden parties to be held during the summer months, will take place Saturday, at 2:30 p. m. at the James Putnam House in Danvers, Essex County Division of the club. Mrs. Charles H. Mussey, chairman, is in charge, and Mrs. George R. Gladtham is the hostess.

Speakers of the afternoon will include Co. A. Platt Andrews, Mrs. Frank Rae Batchelder, vice-chairman of the Republican State committee; Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, president of the Mass. Women's Republican Club; Mrs. Nelson W. Howard, director of the political department of the club; Mrs. Isaac Patch of Gloucester, and Mrs. Henry Wade. The Girl Scouts of Danvers, under the leadership of Mrs. Sargent Wellman, will have a part in the program.

WEST ROXBURY LEGION PLANS CARNIVAL

The West Roxbury Post of The American Legion will hold its annual carnival on Billings Field, in the rear of the Legion's quarters on Center st., tomorrow evening from 7 p. m. to midnight, and on Saturday, from noon until midnight.

The outstanding attraction will be a high diving act, by Lucille Anderson, one of the most daring and picturesque high divers of the country. Miss Anderson dives from a tower 85 feet high, into a tank of water, only four and one-half feet deep, and 11 feet wide.

The committee has also been successful in securing a number of Shetland Ponies which will be available for rides for the "kiddies" Saturday afternoon and early evening. Other attractions and features, which made the last Armistice Day celebration of the post the outstanding out-door event in West Roxbury for many years will be included.

The newly-elected commander, Frederick J. Curtin, is chairman of the committee. He is being ably assisted by the Present Commander John J. Downey, Bill Cameron, Bill O'Brien, and other officers and members of the post; in fact practically all the members of the post are a working committee for the Carnival. The Post's Fife and Drum Corps, the Legion Auxiliary, and members of Gettysburg Post, G. A. R., also are assisting.

Miss Burnce Starts Today for Europe

Miss Frances Burnce of Boston Teachers' College faculty and recipient of the degree of doctor of philosophy from Boston University, will join the group of educators, headed by Professor Jesse B. Davis of Harvard and Boston University, for the study of secondary school systems in Germany, England, Scotland, France and Denmark. Miss Burnce leaves Boston for Europe this afternoon at 5 o'clock and will return December 1. She has been granted a leave of absence by the Boston School Committee.

Somerville Curate Leaves for Canton

Rev. Fr. Laurence B. Killian, S. T. L., for more than 11 years a curate at the Church of St. Catherine of Genoa, Spring Hill, Somerville, left today to assume his new duties as assistant of St. John's Church, Canton. He will be succeeded at St. Catherine's Church by Rev. John M. Manion, for the past six years assistant at St. Peter's Church, Lowell.

PLAN FIGHT FOR MORE PLANES FOR ARMY

Washington, June 20—Declaring Congress must take steps to expand the army's $150,000,000 five-year aviation program, Rep. James C. C. Michigan, chairman of the House military affairs committee, prepared to make a 15,000-mile inspection trip of all aviation posts.

A strong advocate of adequate air preparedness, James said the five-year program already is obsolete.

"We ought to start hearings on another five or six-year aviation program," he said. "The present program will be completed in 1933, when the army will have 1800 planes."

The importance of aviation as a part of the national defense cannot be overestimated. We must have more and better planes."

BISHOP CANNON MUM ON STOCK PURCHASE

Washington, June 20 (INS)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., did not deny today that he did some dabbling in stocks through Kahle & Co., a firm that is now charged with being a bucket shop. Neither did he confirm it. The bishop just didn't want to talk about it.

Bishop Cannon was coatless, vestless and collarless when interviewed in his office near the capitol today. A handkerchief was looped around his neck to take up the perspiration that rolled down his face as he dictated letters to his political lieutenants in Virginia, who have just followed his advice in perfecting a permanent anti-Smith organization.

"This," said the bishop, referring to the stock gambling charges, "is a matter that I must look into carefully, and until I do that there is nothing to say. It is being played up by the newspapers and cannot be answered hastily."

EX-HUSBAND OF GANNA WALSKA, COCHRAN, DEAD

Yonkers, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Alexander Smith Cochran, chief owner of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Co. in Yonkers, died today at Saranac Lake, where he went last Friday in hope of retaining his health.

Mr. Cochran once was regarded as the richest bachelor in America. He was the former husband of Ganna Walska, whom he divorced.

He gave generously to charity in many directions, frequently making gifts ranging from $10,000 to $100,000. On one occasion he presented $1000 to each of 250 employes.

NOTED AS SPORTSMAN.

He had been noted as a yachtsman, horseman and polo player. In 1914 he built the yacht Vanitie to contest in the trials to select a defender for the America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock. The Vanitie was defeated for the honor by the Resolute.

Wide publicity came to Mr. Cochran through his short-lived romance with Ganna Walska, Polish pianienne, who later became the wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago.

The romance began on the Aquitania, in July, 1920. McCormick, Cochran and Walska sailed on the liner. McCormick, who was to sponsor Walska's unfortunate effort to sing "Zaza" at a gala performance of the Chicago Opera Company the following season, introduced her to Cochran.

COCHRAN'S ARDENT SUIT.

From that moment the eccentric bachelor millionaire's fancy and imagination were enchained. He followed her about on the continent. He followed in late summer to Zurich, Switzerland. She was then a widow of a few months, Dr. Fraenkel having died in April, 1920.

Harold McCormick, to whom even then Walska looked for friendly guidance, was in Zurich. He was called away on business however. Then, for three days, Cochran embarked on a courtship that has seldom been equalled in modern times. He sent Ganna great, gorgeous bunches of roses, with priceless jewels nesting in the petals. On two successive mornings at her hotel was delivered a costly and magnificent automobile.

HER FLIGHT FROM CHICAGO

Cochran's "follow through" in love making was superb. No love-sick young man ever conducted a more persistent suit. Walska was alone. Her friend and counsellor, McCormick, had been called away. She talked to a woman friend, saying:

"I am lonely. I don't know what to do."

"Marry Cochran," advised the friend.

And so the world of wealth and society was astonished to read in mid-September, 1920, that Cochran had become her third husband.

Trouble developed soon after their brilliant honeymoon. Early in 1921 the couple returned to America. Walska, proud of her voice, aspired to an operatic career. Mr. McCormick afforded her an opportunity to sing "Zaza" in Chicago. At least one director said her voice was unsuited to the part. Cochran opposed her operatic venture.

The singer's temperamental and other difficulties culminated in her sensational flight from Chicago on the eve of her much-advertised debut in "Zaza." She came to New York, rejoined Cochran for a time and then went to Paris.

Man Dies 2 Hours After Collapse

Within two hours after he collapsed from illness opposite his home, Vincenzo Scamuntra, 41, of 185 Endicott st., died in Haymarket Relief Hospital, early today. Scamuntra was found by Patrolmen Joseph Lundy and William Coher in front of 184 Endicott st., where he had fallen, apparently overcome by illness.

After examination he was held by hospital authorities for observation. He died within two hours. Death was due to asthma, according to the authorities at the hospital.

Hero Army Pigeon of World War Is Dead in Jersey

Washington, June 20 (INS)—Word reached the War Department today of the death in New Jersey of the army pigeon, "President Wilson," hero of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

"President Wilson," during an intensive machine gun and artillery action on November 3, 1918, was liberated at Grand Pre, in the Argonne, with an important message. Twenty-five minutes later, flying through fire and fog, he arrived at Rampont, 25 miles away, with one leg shattered and his breast pierced by a machine gun bullet.

GRANGER URGES DEBENTURE

Washington, June 20 (AP)—The export debenture plan, eliminated from the farm relief program, was advocated today before a Senate finance sub-committee by L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, as the only method by which growers of surplus crops could receive the benefit of the tariff.

He said unless the farmer was given a "drawback" like that given domestic manufacturers of imported goods for export, there "will be a different story to tell."

"You better tell the story because you are not going to get it," observed Sen. Connally (D.), Texas.

"I am an optimist," Taber replied, adding he was not opposed to the manufacturers' drawback or duty remittance.

France May Shoot 100 to U. S. in Torpedo

Paris, June 20 (INS)—A transatlantic torpedo may be France's reply to the first and only New York-Paris flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

White aviators are seeking to duplicate the feat of the "Lone Eagle," Messrs. Frechet, Moyne and Clement have resigned and built the working model of a boat which they assert proves the theory, "You can travel as fast in the water as over it."

According to the three inventors, a trial spin of the working model in the Seine was conclusive. The "torpedo," when built to full size, will be able to transport 100 passengers from France to New York in 30 hours, they declare. Lindbergh's hop required 33½ hours.

The torpedo is sheated in two cylinders each of which is encircled by a spiral blade, the propeller. Each cylinder is revolved by a separate motor to which it is geared. Each takes a different direction.

In appearance the strange craft looks like a large bore drill. In principle it literally bores its way through the water.

'LINDY HATS' FOR THE CLUB CHILDREN

For more than a month the Boston American Lindbergh Club has been searching far and wide for a novel surprise for the children of the club. At last one has been found.

It is a Lindy aviator hat, made of thin muslin for summer wear and yet patterned after the aviators' hats worn by Col. Lindbergh and other fliers. Through special arrangement with a hat manufacturer, the club has been able to have this cloth hat designed.

The first shipment of the hats in vivid color combinations of red, white and blue has been received by the Lindbergh Club.

These hats will be given FREE to members of the club until the supply is exhausted. The first distribution will be made next Saturday, when the names of 100 boys and girls of the Lindbergh Club from all over New England will be published in the Boston Evening American.

The publication of your name will entitle you to one of the new Lindy hats free, providing you write Secretary, Boston American Lindbergh Club, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass., within one week of the date of the publication of your name, and send in your full name and address. The hat will be mailed to you immediately.

Then starting next Monday, June 24, 50 names of boys and girls will be published daily in the Boston Evening American and 50 of these new designed Lindy hats will be given away daily until our supply runs out.

Now, children, these Lindy hats are absolutely new. The Lindy hat is one every boy and girl will want. You can not buy the hat for it was designed and made exclusively for the Boston American Lindbergh Club. It is just the hat for summer wear. So watch the Boston Evening American every day for your name. Children living outside Boston will not be forgotten in this treat.

But remember—after you see your name in the list be sure to write to the secretary of the Boston American Lindbergh Club within a week from the date of the publication of your name, otherwise you will not receive your hat.

Saturday is the first big day of this treat. One Hundred names of boys and girls will be printed Saturday. Then starting next Monday, June 24, and every day thereafter until our supply of hats is exhausted, 50 names will be printed daily.

Wife in Accident, Sues for "Loss of Her Society"

Liverpool, Eng., June 20 (AP)—Although Mr. Justice MacNaghten said it was a "bright idea," a jury today dismissed the claim of a Scotsman for damages for the "loss of his wife's society" after an injury to her in a motor car accident. His wife had already been awarded damages for the injury.

The husband told the court the idea of the second action was suggested by his doctor, a fellow Scot.

Mr. Justice MacNaghten, himself a Scotsman, complimented the plaintiff on his business acumen.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverish, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child, make his stomach and bowels easy in five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

BOSTON 'FLYING SALESMAN' TO TAKE BRIDE

By G. W. HAMBLIN

The genial sales manager of the Curtiss Flying Service, Lieut. P. H. Spencer, will attempt to sandwich his coming marriage in between demonstrations of the Curtiss airplanes. Today Spencer is showing one of the boys of the New Haven Terminals, Inc., how a Challenger-engined Robin flies, equipped with pontoons instead of wheels.

Friday of this week will see Spencer up at Wales, Mass. There's a nice big lake up there, measuring one and a half miles square, and Spencer will give another demonstration for the edification of a prospective buyer.

Lieut. Spencer

And then Saturday, "P. H." will hop down to Hartford to take Miss Helen L. Miner of New Britain ave., Hartford, as his bride.

After a two-day honeymoon, "P. H." will come back to Bean Town and make his home in Hingham.

Stored in the Curtiss Flying Service warehouse and repair depot in North Grafton, right near the Worcester airport, are four Challenger engined Robins, which were received from the factory last week. Next week's carload of four Command-Aires are expected, and after being set up and test flown, will be distributed to buyers, and to the Curtiss bases in New England.

Miss Olivia "Keet" Mathews, of Dedham, is continuing her flying at the airport over on Jefferies Point, and is piling up her time rapidly. "Keet" is flying Moths and Warner engined Challengers, and can't seem to decide which she likes better.

Olivia Mathews

Mrs. Mildred Chase and her husband, Dr. Frank Chase, of Chelsea, are keeping the Doc's Travel Air in the air a couple of hours each day, and Mrs. Chase now has 16 hours of solo to her credit. She will try for her private license as soon as the federal inspector reaches Boston again.

And then, to make the women fliers' record complete, there is Mrs. "Teddy" Kenyon, who bats around the sky trails with her aeronautic-inventor-husband, Ted. The Kenyon family have an Arrow Sport, powered with a Ville M-5, 60-horsepower engine, and the pair of them are running secret tests on some aircraft instruments Ted is working on.

There is a spirit of close co-operation at the airport, even with the overwhelming changes of the past year. This spirit was exemplified when Andrew Ivanoff, superintendent of Wright engine service for the East Coast Aircraft Sales Corp., chartered a Fledgling from the Curtiss company and went upstairs with Joe Barber for a check flight in the training plane. "Andy" likes the Fledgling a lot, and he put the ship through its paces today.

---

We spoke of the east coast hop in the preceeding paragraph, and now we find that the hangar being built for east coast will be finished in 60 days and will be an innovation as far as hangars go. Enclosed in its walls will be a complete Wright engine department, a sales room enclosed in glass, hangar space, offices and all the necessary details to a complete service institution.

---

Lieut. Charlie Emerson, pilot for Skyways, Inc., came back to Boston after completing a cross-country trip from Lawrence, Mass., to Lawrence, Kans., with a passenger. The trip out took 21 hours, with a head wind holding Charlie back and the hop back to Lawrence, Mass., was completed in 17 hours. Passenger Arthur Abbott won a newspaper prize in Lawrence, Mass., and the trip out to the sister city was his reward.

Charlie said the Warner Challenger performed beautifully all the way.

Two of the newer sportsman pilots at the airport are setting the world on fire with their flying. Joseph Roberts, 21-year-old Needham resident, will have his limited commercial pilot's license before many days have passed. Joe leaves today for the American Eagle factory in Kansas City, Mo., to take delivery on a Kinner engined Eagle. Joe will most likely have a checking pilot along with him on the flight back to Boston, and even if he doesn't, the boys at the airport think he could make the hop solo.

The other sportsman pilot is Clark Jackson of Beverly. Jackson bought an OX-5 motored American Eagle from the Bay State Flying Service, and has spent all but 20 minutes of the necessary 10 hours in the air to get a private license.

Both boys plan to enter commercial flying as soon as they are able or as soon as the necessary licenses are acquired, and both hope to find a suitable field near their home towns from which to operate.

This column will be a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. Questions pertaining to aviation will be answered in the order in which they are received. Address queries to Flying Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

PROTESTANT KNIGHTS CHIDE MRS. HOOVER

Norfolk, Va., June 20 (AP)—The Knights of American Protestantism closed their national convention here after re-electing officers, deploring the action of Mrs. Hoover in entertaining the wife of a negro congressman," and declaring disbelief in "race equality."

J. H. Walters of Norfolk, national vice-president, announced that of the 21 members of the committee that drafted the resolution not one was a Southerner.

A copy of it is to be sent Mrs. Hoover, and each of the 120 chapters of the order is asked to adopt a similar resolve and dispatch it to her.

S. H. Remenderfer of Muncie, Ind., founder of the order, was re-elected president.

Only 2 Days Left to Get "Aida" Tickets

Only two days remain for boys and girls to satisfy the simple requirements for obtaining tickets to the opera festival at Braves Field next Thursday, June 27. This spectacle in the open air will be one of the noteworthy musical events of years. Verdi's brilliant composition, "Aida," will be given.

Every child who send a letter on "The Value of Music" to the Aida Festival Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, will receive a free ticket, but these letters must be in the editor's office not later than Saturday, June 22. Letters must not run over 100 words. An audience of 20,000 is expected to hear this great musical event which will be presented by a cast of internationally known artists.

British Complain of American "Raids"

London, June 20 (INS)—Englishmen are complaining that, having denuded Britain of a large percentage of its historic art treasures, Americans are now turning their attention to less obvious historic pieces such as public clocks and statues.

Tired, Burning Feet

Tender feet—tired, aching, burning and swollen feet. The minute you put them into a "Tiz" bath you can feel the pain being drawn out and glorious comfort being restored. "Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause sour feet to ache, swell and burn. It also takes the soreness out of corns, calluses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store and have real foot comfort at last. Costs only a few cents.

'LIQUOR VAULT' IN OFFICE RAID FOUND ARID

The now famous vault in a Kimball building office, guarded all night by two prohibition sleuths to await its opening today, yawned an empty yawn when Ernest Butler, building engineer, drilled its steel doors in search of liquor.

Suspicion first fell on the vault when federal sleuths, dressed in plus fours, descended on Rooms 346 and 347 of the Tremont st. office building, seized a pint of contraband and arrested John E. Hart, an advertising man, alleged to be the tenant.

Convinced that the corridor vault concealed a cache of valuable liquors to assuage the thirst of the legal fraternity named as customers of the premises raided, the Government agents decided to explore its depths.

The net results of their efforts today produced a loaded revolver, $60, a sheaf of correspondence addressed to "J. E. Hart" and a lengthy list of names which the agents said may be the roster of speakeasy patrons.

Meanwhile Hart was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner E. C. Jenney and held in $1000 for hearing on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Magician Gives Big Treat to Children

For the second time in as many days the Boston Evening American was instrumental in bringing joy and happiness to the little, sick kiddies in our hospitals, when Harry Blackstone, the famous magician, entertained the children at the Convalescent Home of the Boston Children's Hospital in Wellesley, through an arrangement made by this paper with Loew's Orpheum Theater, where he is appearing this week.

Seated in the school room, the youngsters eagerly watched every move made by the magician. Several times Mr. Blackstone called upon them to help him out by choosing cards and cutting strings and the eagerness with which they responded was inspiring to those present.

"LEGAL LIQUOR" SEIZED

ONE-BOY CLASS GRADUATES AT HIGH SCHOOL

Lancaster, June 20 (AP)—The Lancaster high school class of 1929, alias John Samuel Gilmore, is to be graduated tonight in the Town Hall, and, as John is to be the whole show on the program, the school committee has received such a flood of applications for tickets that it has been compelled to limit them to the capacity of the auditorium.

The occasion of John Samuel being the lone star of his class is due to the fact that all his former classmates are graduating from other high schools, principally in Leominster and Clinton.

After an overture by an orchestra, and invocation by a local pastor, John Samuel Gilmore will read the class history. Following selections by Lancaster Girls' Glee Club, and John S. Gilmore will read an essay on chemistry, and after chorus singing by the school pupils J. Samuel Gilmore will present the class gift, which will be accepted by the chairman of the school committee.

Music sketches will be followed by the presentation of a diploma to J. S. Gilmore. The exercises will conclude with a reception by the full class membership, John Samuel Gilmore, himself.

Will Revise Geneva Convention of 1906

INCOME TAXES GIVE TREASURY BIG SURPLUS

Washington, June 20 (AP)—A material increase in income tax collections has boosted the government's total revenue for the current fiscal year to $3,790,141,997 as of June 18, giving a present surplus of $201,705,535.

The Treasury's daily statement today reported that income tax collections for June 18 amounted to $239,692,700, one of the largest single day's collections ever made.

It raised the total for the month to $359,951,240, or $150,534,304 more than collected in the same period of last June.

For the fiscal year since June 30 income tax payments have totalled $2,135,126,544, or $190,140,331 more than collected in the same period last year. The amount is only $46,000,000 less than the total for the entire fiscal year of 1928. The total collections for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, exceeded those for the same period last year by $58,156,826.

Treasury experts said that upon the basis of present returns all indications pointed to the treasury having the $100,000,000 surplus June 30, recently predicted.

SNOOK ADMITS TAKING SLAIN CO-ED'S KEY

Columbus, O., June 20 (AP)—W. G. Shellenbarger, chief of detectives, said today Dr. James H. Snook has admitted he got a key from the keyring of Miss Theora K. Hix, slain Ohio State co-ed, at the spot where her body was found last Friday.

Shellenbarger said such a report was made to him by Detective Otto Phillips, who was in the room with County Prosecutor John J. Chester, where Dr. Snook was questioned.

Phillips said he was questioning Dr. Snook about the key, which was missing from the ring. Dr. Snook, he said, replied that he had gotten the key from the girl Wednesday and returned it to her Thursday.

Then Phillips asked: "Where did you get that key before you turned it in Friday?"

Phillips quoted Dr. Snook as saying: "You know where I got it."

"At the body?" Phillips asked, and he quoted the professor as answering "Yes."

Phillips said the questioning was dropped there and Snook was taken back to jail.

Shortly after Shellenbarger and Chester left the police station explaining they were going to breakfast. Instead they drove directly to the county jail and went to Snook's cell.

Watch N. E. Ports for 2 Escaped Prisoners

Brentwood, N. H., June 20 (AP)—New England coast ports were being watched today in an effort to apprehend two prisoners who escaped from the House of Correction here yesterday after overpowering their keeper and taking his pistol.

The men, Kenneth Marshall of Derby and Charles McQuillan of Exeter, were captured only three weeks ago in Portland, Me., after a similar dash for freedom on May 19, last.

Divorce and Alimony for Randolph Wife

A decree of divorce with alimony of $30 weekly was handed down by Judge McCosh in Norfolk probate court today in favor of Mrs. Estelle E. Wallace against Clarence A. Wallace of Randolph. In her action Mrs. Wallace alleged cruel and abusive treatment and intoxication, all of which were denied on the witness stand by her husband.

The couple were married in 1894. Each is more than 60 years old.

FINED AS DRUNK ASKS RETURN OF 'MEDICINE'

Brockton, June 20—An attempt on the part of counsel for Robert B. Parker of Warren ave., convicted of drunken driving and being drunk, to regain possession of a pint of liquor on the ground that it was medicine, was unsuccessful today.

Atty. James H. Dunphy told Judge Dowe that the liquor was prescribed by a physician. He also demanded the return of a bottle of ginger ale which, with the liquor, was taken from Parker's car. Parker was fined $105.

Judge Dowe referred Dunphy to City Solicitor Thomas W. Prince, who in turn passed him on to Deputy Marshal Morey. Morey handed him over to Officer Frolo, who refused to give up the liquor.

Lightning Kills Boy Under Tree

INTEREST KEEN IN BIG RADIO EXHIBITION

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

With scores of the finest examples of radio manufacturing craft on exhibition and demonstrating their ability to bring in unbelievable distance and richness of tone, the annual New England Radio Trade Show has turned the fourth floor of the Statler Hotel into one of busiest marts in the field of commerce.

The second day of the show today brought no diminution in interest in the products of America's leading manufacturers of radio apparatus. Dealers from every section of New England were registered, and spent many hours studying the latest developments in the newest of major lines.

All the leading makes of radio receivers and loud speakers were represented in the numerous exhibits presented under the joint auspices of manufacturers and local distributors. Exhibits were particularly notable for the general excellence of tone quality, workmanship and beauty of design. Even the most moderate-priced sets are housed in cabinets of choice woods and artistic lines.

FOR DEALERS ONLY

The present show is being staged for the edification of New England dealers. The general public will have a chance to view the season's output at the regular annual Radio Show at Mechanics Building Garden in October.

The screen-grid tube is a universal feature of practically all sets. The high gain of this tube in radio frequency stages makes its use inevitable if the manufacturer wishes to keep in step with the times. This, combined with the new 245 power tube, and the 227 for detector and audio stages, makes it possible to produce an electric set drawing a uniform filament voltage of 2½ volts, thus simplifying the problem of the power supply.

INDUSTRY BOOMING

According to Eugene R. Farny, president of Al-American Monawk Corp., conditions have never been better in the history of the radio industry.

"Reports from every direction indicate that the billion dollar buying power of the public will be back of the desire for the best in radio," he said.

Exhibitors include:

American Motor Equipment Co., Atlantic Radio and Marine Co., Ceco Manufacturing Co., The C. E. Baley Co., Benedette & Graham Co., Butts Ordway Co., Balkite Radio Corp., Bond Electric Co., J. H. Burke Co., George Collins Co., E. T. Cunningham Tube Co., Colonial Radio Corp., Decatur Hopkins Machine Co., General Electric Supply Co., Harry W. Gedhard (Majestavox), Crayfish Electric, Howe & Co., Hub Cycle & Auto Supply Co., Linscott Supply Co., Lewis Electric Supply Co., Milhender Electric Supply Co., Motor Supply Co., New England Distributing Co., Northeastern Radio, Inc., Oliver-Ditson Co., F. # Perils of Sea Flight Recounted by Stowaway

the beautiful French capital with the difficulties encountered between leaving Old Orchard and arriving at the Yellow Bird's destination that has brought back to me, more vividly than ever, what the voyage meant.

When I entered the Yellow Bird on the beach, it was for better or worse. Whatever were the consequences, I wasn't going to complain. At the beginning, our motor hit evenly and steadily.

After passing Nova Scotia, Lotti said:

"Now, the worst of the trip is probably over."

But we found out later that we had by no means seen the worst at that time.

Most of the time, we flew above the clouds. It was a beautiful sight: the clouds below looked like big white beds. I felt a much greater sense of security when the sun shone than when we were driving onward through the numerous fogs.

Every time we were in great danger, I looked out the window to see how it would happen if we crashed. Personally, I had little to lose except myself. I had no food with me—except a bar of chocolate—and I had worn all my old clothing. There would be no need of good ones if we went under.

SHARED FOOD

I admire Assolant, particularly. He was always very cool-headed. Once he gave the controls to Le Vevre and came into the cabin, where he was very sick.

He rested for about five minutes and then went back again to the pilot's seat—never complaining.

All I shared their food supply with me. After the first few minutes of anger had cleared away, all treated me like one of the gang. They never once threw up to me any comment about "spoiling anything."

I asked Lotti once, by note: "Do things look favorable?"

Lotti answered:

"Things always look favorable until they go wrong."

None of us could talk because the motor deafened us all, and conversation was practically impossible. And that, too, left with our thoughts to ourselves, with no way to express them except by notes. Many were the times when I went pounding my seasickness ghost through my troubled imagination—always to be brought around to my senses by the hopeful look in Lotti's eyes.

TO TAKE UP FLYING

Riding above the clouds, it didn't seem as if we were making any time, but I knew we must have been when I stop now to think back. When I looked down into the clouds, I could see our reflection riding along on the billows below, and a beautiful circular rainbow all around the reflection.

The temperature was quite comfortable until we reached a point just off the Spanish coast. Then it became chilly, but there was nothing we could do about it. My companions gave me the job of reeling in the ground wire when they finished using the radio, and I also did other various small duties.

Lotti very patiently explained everything to me. I learned more about aviation in those 24 hours than I bet I could learn in months of schooling. I think aviation is swell, and intend to take it up as soon as I can.

One thing that interested me was the fact that we carried two spare tubes for the tires of the undercarriage. They were slightly inflated, and Lotti and I used them as beds in the big cabin. Of course, we got no real sleep during the flight, however.

AS MESSENGER

Incidentally, as we were volplaning down to our first landing at Comillas, Lotti had arranged the tubes as shock-absorbers, but this was unnecessary, since Assolant came down as perfectly as hardly felt a thing.

One of my jobs during the flight was to serve as a messenger. This I did while Lotti was at the radio. I had to walk unsteadily through the narrow passage from the cabin to the pilot's seat, carrying the messages covering our position, instructions and other matters.

When the engine stopped and we landed at Comillas, I felt slightly dizzy. My first feeling was of great gladness that we had landed on European soil—being one of the great ambitions of my life. To think I was safe was to realize, once and for always, that it was all due to the splendid piloting of the men upon whom I had played slowaway, and were so kind to me.

Then, too, came the realization of the great danger in which I had placed them, and that if it had not been for me, the Yellow Bird might have landed at La Bourg de Field instead of the obscure town on the Spanish coast.

One thing I greatly appreciate, and which I cannot repeat too often, is the fact that my companions treated me more like a brother than a stowaway. It is a pity we cannot always understand each other.

The point in my landing with them at Paris—something which made me feel better happened when I was being hurried across an field at Le Bourget. An American caught my arm, and yelled into my ear:

"Don't mind the criticism, kid. You brought them good luck."

These, perhaps, were the first words which really affected me.

At Comillas, there was no question of getting sleep, no matter how much we all wanted it. The crowd kept us going until three the next morning. Now, I'm getting all the rest I need.

The natives at Comillas were very decent and when I slept in the Yellow Bird they brought me a mattress and blankets and pillows so I would be comfortable while I was guarding the plane. Here I feel that I could at least do part duty while my companions treated in the town posada (hotel.)

Among the many things presented me at Comillas was a real Spanish hunting knife. The belle of the town, Senorita Comillas, presented it and also kissed me on both cheeks.

Apparently there are all sorts of absurd stories still circulating about the circumstances surrounding my boarding the Yellow Bird at the beach. The simple facts are these.

In the late afternoon, the day before the takeoff, I got into breeches and puttees at home and took my brother's aviation helmet and goggles. Mother asked me where I was going. I said, "Horseback riding."

Mother didn't think that was strange, because I was in the habit of riding. But that night, at Old Orchard, I was quite unprepared when I met mother, father and a couple of neighbors who had driven to the beach for the evening.

DENIES COLLUSION

Mother asked me whether I would come home with them, but I said:

"No, I guess I'll stay with the boys awhile."

She then cautioned:

"Come home early."

"I'll try to come home as early as I can," I replied, kissing her good-bye. That was the last I saw of my family.

And today is my kid brother's birthday. I've just cabled him, telling him he should be glad he's home with the folks and having a real American good time.

I have seen stories printed saying some member of my family assists them. This was collusion between Assolant and myself so I could board the plane. That is absolutely untrue. The fliers never saw me before the takeoff, and I don't understand why anyone could have said a thing so detrimental to the aviators themselves. I am sorry any such story has been circulated, and I am sure my family is not responsible for such a thing as that.

New Zealand Quakes Losing Intensity

Wellington, New Zealand, June 20 (AP)—Earth tremors, while continuing, were easier today in the Murchison district. Although there was an occasional heavy shock they seemed more deep seated and no so wracking or frequent. The Government geologist reports: "Lyell is safe, but between there and Murchison several families are isolated and nothing has been heard of them."

Five Deaths From Drowning in Conn.

New Haven, Ct., June 20 (AP)—Five deaths from drowning were added to the toll in this state. The victims were: Edward Yarkman, drowned on the eve of his seventh birthday in Mill River, New Haven; Albert Mancarella, 16, drowned as he fell off a wharf piling in Middletown; Ronald Monty, 16, died of head injuries from dive; Joseph Kraniuss, six, drowned in Shetucket river at Taftville, and Herbert Poole, 17, drowned in an artificial lake in Waterbury.

CHAPTER 3

COLIN GILLESPIE let the reins fall on her mare's neck and pulled a letter from her pocket.

She had started out at five-thirty in the morning from Kelekiyah to get some exercise before the sun rose high in the sky

Yesterday, after rather a long silence, she had heard from Alasdair. Two planes had landed in Kelekiyah and one of the men had given her a packet which he'd received from Alasdair with instructions to put it into her hand himself.

Alone in her own room she had read of Sandy's rescue and the revel had on Tel Ahmar and how he was on the road to recovery.

"Now," wrote Alasdair, "about the revolt of which Tel Ahmar is the first round. Sandy's job has been to try and get the names of the actual instigators, and then to get into their confidence as a budding insurgent so that I might have something definite to go on. His plan is to become more and more of a revolutionary and climb on lightly to the dangerous man. The great thing is to prevent a general rising.

"Your discoveries about Ibrahim are interesting. I agree with you that it is better to let him think he's still undetected rather than have him arrested before you've got all the names."

Then she read her letters forwarded by Sir John. The last of the batch was from Hope. He had written it in April, after she'd been about six weeks in Kelekiyah.

As young subordinate and senior officer, why should their relationship ever change from the friendly matter-of-fact arrangement it had been from the first? When Sandy's work was over she would leave Kelekiyah and probably never see Stanhope again.

Her personal relations with him whatever they might have been had they met naturally, could never now be righted. Their very first meeting had been a plot to deceive him. And since this letter . . . oh, it was impossible! Once she had ceased to be Sandy she must never see him again. She would not answer his letter, and he was too sensitive to write a second.

What a tangle! She felt utterly miserable, though she knew that had she been at home and this letter had arrived she would have read it gladly, for even after one evening with him she had known that Stanhope would not open his

1,300 JOIN HAVERHILL STRIKERS

Haverhill, June 20 (AP)—Employes of five shoe factories here today joined the ranks of 1450 strikers of five other plants, bringing the total number on strike to 2750.

The employes who quit work today were from the plants of the Kimel Shoe Company, the M. T. Ornateen Company, Kos Shoe Company, Fox Shoe Company and the Hartman Shoe Company.

The strike is the outcome of the failure of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union and the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association to agree on new wage and work-week agreements.

Agreements with the plants now affected by the strike have expired and pacts with all other plants in the city will expire by July 15.

WAIT WORD OF POPE IN MEXICO

Mexico City, June 20 (INS)—If the Pope cables his approval from the Vatican, the long-awaited settlement of the dispute between church and state in Mexico may become a reality today.

A report of "understandings" reached by Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, Bishop Pascual Diaz and President Portes Gil, has been sent to Rome by telegraph. It is understood that if this report is sanctioned by Pope Pius X it will immediately be worked over into a treaty bringing the conflict to an end.

The Vatican is expected to reply promptly. Archbishop Ruiz said he could make no announcement until he had heard from the Vatican, and President Portes Gil likewise withheld a statement.

Throughout Catholic, diplomatic and political circles, however, it is confidently believed papal ratification is but a matter of hours

The Curious Quizzer

THE QUESTION

Would you sacrifice a life in rome to marry, as a Haverhill widow decided after she was left such an income in a will?

MISS FLORENCE E. MERSON, Beacon st.—Without hesitation I would decide to marry the man I loved rather than lose him at a cost of sacrificing any amount of money. One million dollars would not tempt me to throw away my future happiness. The money could not give a girl the true joys in life, no matter what she could purchase with it, unless the man she loved was with her to share her good fortune. Unless a girl is a gold-digger with no conscience, I think you will find it is only an exception where the husband-to-be is not held superior to and above a big inheritance of money left to her under the condition that she shall remain single.

ARTHUR I. REYNOLDS, Haviland st.—If I had proposed to a girl and was accepted there is nothing I would not sacrifice in order to claim her for my wife. If a lot of money was willed to me under stipulation that I must not marry, I would probably have to postpone the event. But after I had saved enough to provide a home and felt assured that my position was secure I know I would feel happier living with the girl I married than I would if I possessed a legacy of thousands of dollars left to me to spend alone. That widow in Haverhill will be appreciated by her new husband because he knows that she loves him more than the money she sacrificed to prove her love.

MISS DOROTHY I. MONCOEUR, St. Botolph st.—My surname means "my heart." When I marry I shall probably have for a husband a man with another name. In him I expect to find all the affections implied in my name, still mine, only that it is transferred by love into the man's keeping. I select for a life mate. Money is what everybody is striving for, but never forget that there are greater blessings than a pile of money can offer. Love is of greater importance to a girl than all the money in the world. It is cruel to break off a love match because of codicils in the will of a dead relative. After giving up the chance of getting the dead person's wealth and I was in love with a man I would wait until we had earned enough money, then marry and forget what I might have had.

HAROLD A. GILMAN, Hemenway st.—If the prospective husband has no education it does not seem the proper thing for him to sacrifice a life income just to continue living the rest of his life with his wife who will find it necessary to help maintain the home by working. On the other hand, if a fellow is educated, he should not think of giving up the girl he wants to a yearly income he would otherwise have been given.

R. C. Zzyzz Last on List

New York, June 20 (AP)—Constantarrana Zzyzz holds a most coveted place of honor. He is last in the new Manhattan telephone directory.

TOM MIX TELLS OF ROBBERY

Portsmouth, N. H., June 20—Tom Mix, movie star and Sells-Floto circus headliner, reported to Portsmouth police today the theft of $5,000 in cash and securities from his berth in the private car in which he has been traveling with the circus.

Chief of Police George H. Ducker and Officer Dennis Kelley arrested a member of the movie actor's suite on suspicion and held him for questioning in connection with the alleged robbery. The missing valuables, Mix told the police, were concealed in a leather bag under the berth in his private car and included $7100 in cash, $25,000 in Liberty Bonds, $8000 in other securities, $35,000 worth of credit slips and $4000 in bankers' checks.

The robbery was discovered last night when the circus had completed its run here and was preparing to move to Concord for its next show.

A description of the stolen valuables has been broadcast throughout all New England cities.

Mix declared the thief overlooked $65,000 worth of jewelry in a box kept in his private car which was easily accessible then the cash and security theft was committed.

Seeks to Extend City Hall Site in Newton

Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton has recommended to the Board of Aldermen that more land be purchased in Newton Center for a new city hall and that $43,100 be appropriated. The city has already acquired part of the site, a triangle bounded by Homer and Walnut sts. and Commonwealth ave.

New Serial Begins in Boston American Tomorrow

Something different in popular fiction will be afforded readers of the Boston Evening American in "Forest Love," by Hazel Livingston, which will appear in daily installments, beginning tomorrow.

"Forest Love" is the story of Nancy Hollenbeck, a beautiful young product of modern civilization, who soars on love when her social climber mother snubs and rejecting the attentions of Mat Tully because he lacks wealth.

The girl encourages the advances of Jack Beamer, wealthy married man, who wishes to divorce his wife in order to marry Nancy. Nancy goes on a mountain trip, where she meets Roger Decatur, a handsome ranger, and promptly falls head over heels in love with him.

"Forest Love" will begin in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Scots Give Degree to Fritz Kreisler

Glasgow, Scotland, June 20—Fritz Kreisler, the famous violinist, and Mme. Curie, the great French scientist and radium specialist, have received honorary degrees of doctor of laws at Glasgow University.

PARKING CHARGE DROPPED

Respect for the law caused John K. Swanowski, 25, to give up his job in Waco, Tex., and spend $150 getting back to Boston to answer to a charge of illegal parking in municipal court today.

It had already cost Swanowski so much to appear in court that Judge Bennett placed the case on file.

Swanowski, who formerly lived in Broadway, Chelsea, parked his car for 10 minutes at a restricted curb on Summer st. on May 3 and was tagged. On May 5 he left for Texas. A summons was later issued and then a warrant and this was forwarded to Swanowski by his sister.

Victory Today Means Sixth Place for Hustling Braves

BRANDT TO PITCH FOR TRIBE

By NICK LATLEY

THE HILARIOUS Braves are after sixth place in the National League today in a double-header across the hurdle over the Brooklyn Robins by winning this afternoon pastime. As the invading Robins haven't picked up a ball game at the Wigwam this year, the law of averages is somewhat against the Tribe.

That outfit, however pays no attention to any sort of law. Even the wildest guess would have spotted them to [illegible] Leading Grads [illegible] a sour western trip and [illegible] Bonz add take a [illegible] of smacks at the Brooklyn arms.

A club that does that sort of stuff has possibilities which were dreamed of when the team got away to a great April start. The Braves were winning. Look like a real ball club. They have verve and snap, and field brilliantly.

They made a lot of friends by opening with the dual promotion and they can make a lot more by furnishing steady chunks of the same sort of baseball.

JUDGE FUCHS, who is doing all the managing again and got to keep on it still the optimist.

"That double win wasn't a joke," he announced this morning. "The team has been playing a lot of real baseball. When I rejoined them in Chicago, I expected to find everybody down. But the bustling spirit was there, regardless of the poor record.

"All the players have been trying and most of the games lost could have been turned by a single base hit. It may be our turn to get the close ones for a while. We are shooting to get at the top of the second division. When we arrive there, we'll look ahead again.

"Jimmy Welsh will help the team a lot. And so will the return of Richbourg's batting. He's hitting the ball hard and often. I believe our outfield, which was weak at the start, has been fixed. I have had hopes before and they have been ruined. So I make no predictions. But I will say that the Boston fans will see a hustling ball club, no matter what happens.

TWO GOOD pitching efforts by Bob Smith and Harry Seibold backed by sparkling second base play by the Rabbit and Fred Maguire, made the Braves look real. That second base combination is one of the very best in the game today. Any time a pitcher is good the pair can be depended on to pull him through.

The Rabbit hasn't slowed up in the least, and Freddy hasn't been discouraged by lack of base hits. The two work together with beautiful precision and furnish a great show in practically every ball game.

Strength around second is one of the requisites of a good ball club and the Braves certainly have it.

ED BRANDT, who has shaken all his cold and other troubles, was billed to toss today, with Coupal in line for Uncle Robby. The Dodger pitching staff is pretty well shot up. Dazzy Vance and big Jumbo Elliott did not come to Boston with the club. Both have sore arms.

The rest of the sharpshooters have been working so often that they don't seem to have much spirit in their work. Clark has been a mix for the Tribe, but when they jumped him in the opener he wilted like a hard boiled shirt at some of these recent college ceremonies.

GENE TUNNEY'S MENTOR DEAD

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 20 (INS)—Followers of boxing today mourned the death of William A. McCabe, veteran sportsman who passed away in Dr. James E. Sadler's sanatorium here last night at the age of 60.

During the World War McCabe met Gene Tunney in France and became the marine's ring mentor during his rise to the heavyweight championship. He was Tunney's confidential advisor, though not his manager, and arranged both of the title bouts with Jack Dempsey.

McCabe was a close friend of John L. Sullivan and was in the Boston strong boy's corner on the night when the champion fought Jake Kilrain.

He was police commissioner here and for 18 years was a commissioner of the New York State Prison department.

League Will Pay Nashua Players

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

AFTER a two-day strike the Nashua team took the field at Lynn. The league has agreed to pay the players the salaries due them.

Bernie Starr, formerly catcher of the Lynn champs, is leading the Texas League in batting with an average of .467.

Bobby Evanson, last year with Salem, is back from the South He will probably hook up with the Nashua team.

Lynn gained on two rivals, Manchester and Lewiston, as both of these clubs lost while Lynn was taking a fall out of Nashua.

Carl Ray and Edward Cushman, both pitchers, have been released outright by Brockton. Ray was with Portland earlier in the season.

Leon Chagnon, who was sold to Pittsburgh by Lynn at the end of last season and then sent to Charlestonville, has been pitching wonderful ball for the latter club and will probably be recalled by the Pirates.

Reading, the Lewiston clearing house, has gathered nine hits in six innings at bat including three doubles and a homer.

Chick Gagnon, former Holy Cross star, is back with Lewiston.

Bill Buchman and Ira Thomas have been scouting through the New England League for the past month. Buchman likes the looks of Lefty Al Douglas of the Lynn team.

Watch the New Bedford club. Under the leadership of Jack Ryan this team has taken a new lease of life and only recently beat Lewiston Twins in two games.

American Picks School Stars Tomorrow

The Boston Evening American's All-Scholastic baseball team will appear on these pages tomorrow. Dick McSweeney, Schoolboy Sports Editor, has made careful selections of the leading scholastic baseball players in and around Boston and vicinity. Watch for the Boston Evening American All-Team.

LEWIS IS HERE FOR BOUT WITH SONNY

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, is here, and at 2 o'clock today was to start training for his finish battle with Gus Sonnenberg, which is to be staged at Fenway Park on the night of July 9.

Lewis, with his bride, spent the day looking for living quarters. The big fellow appeared hale and hearty and will give a public demonstration of his famous wrestling prowess at the Revere cycle track this afternoon and every afternoon.

"I understand that Sonnenberg is going to be the winner in the grand elimination tournament in September," said Lewis on his arrival. "Sonnenberg will be taking part in that elimination tourney for the right to meet me, because the title will be back in my hands.

"He was a lucky fellow to beat me, and only for the fact that I understand all I would have gone in the ring that night I had five boils on my body, was physically tired and shouldn't have wrestled.

"He knows that he was lucky too. When I was champion, I took on all comers and beat them all. I wasn't dodging through the sticks meeting a lot of setups. I've wrestled every prominent wrestler in the past 20 years, and beaten them all. I'll beat Sonnenberg, and beat him easily."

Sonnenberg also reported at the camp, the Fenway Inn, and had a light workout. He will start up heavy work this afternoon, joining with Frank Sinkewicz of the North End, Stanley Pinto, Jack Ganson and others.

The advance sale is rolling along in remarkable fashion. A study of the reservations indicates that every State in New England will be represented at Fenway Park, while parties will also flock to the home of the Red Sox from such far away points as Syracuse, N. Y., Kansas City, Tulsa and Chicago.

The peculiar factor is that the $10 seats are selling like hot cakes. The advance sale already has passed the $15,000 mark.

SPRINT TANDEM AT REVERE

Jackie Lawton and Albert Crossley, sprint riders, team up against Frank DiPiani and Archie Villa, another clever pair, in a tandem race at the Revere cycle track Saturday night. This event will be a semifinal to the Chapman-Schmidt two-paced event, and will be run off in mile heats, best two to decide the winner.

In the feature race, George Chapman, Newark veteran; Frankie Keenan of Revere, Francesco Zucchetti, Italian flash; Charlie Jaeger, Newark, and Victor Rausth of Germany will battle.

RED SOX HOPE FOR CHANGE IN FORTUNES

Washington, June 20 - Boss Bill Carrigan today was hoping that the change of scenery from the Yankee Stadium to Clark Griffith's ball yard would spell a change in the fortunes of the Red Sox. The Boston boys got away with one game while they were in the big village but, in the remainder of the contests with the world's champions, they were badly mussed up. Particularly in that last encounter when the Yankees tallied eight runs in a single session off Jack Russell were the Red Sox roughly used.

The Huggins clan made only five more scores in the remainder of the game but they had the Sox outer defense men running ragged chasing flies that were caught and flies that were not. Altogether the Yankees made 20 hits for a total of 31, quite a bit of stickwork for one afternoon.

Babe Ruth got back into the game but didn't do any hitting. His sole attempt was a grounder to Bill Regan.

Bullet Joe Bush Wins for Newark

Newark, N. J., June 20 (INS)—Bullet Joe Bush, former World's Series hero who bobs up with a new club every season, has made good in his latest job—pitching for the Newark International League team. Making his debut with the Yanks yesterday, the veteran defeated Rochester, 5 to 4.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

"EDDIE MACK of the Boston Garden and Col. Bob McKirdy of the Arena Club would give three cheers if somebody would hand each of them half a dozen outstanding local ring attractions," said Mr. Boston today.

"It seems," went on the veteran, "that Fate and a series of right-hand punches are interfering with the health, wealth and happiness of our noble pillow lovers. When Mack started figuring on his outdoor boxing shows at Braves field, he planned to use Jim Maloney, Honeyboy Finnegan and Al Mello three times each. Such a program would have taken care of nine dates.

"Finnegan then got tangled up with one Armando Santiago in Chicago and got knocked out, Gorilla Jones kayoed Al Mello, while Maloney had an old wound under his left eye opened while training at Wamesit for his proposed bout with Jawn Risko.

"Mello is out for the summer, while neither Finnegan nor Maloney will be ready to parade their stuff until August. Mack hopes to send Honeyboy to the barrier against King Tut and Santiago before the outdoor season closes.

"The Maloney-Risko bout will be crossed from the slate, Sharkey next local start will be against Riccardo Bartazzolo, Italian heavyweight. This is a natural and will draw more than $50,000.

"JACK SHARKEY, most famous of New England's fighting sons, will not appear in a local ring as long as he remains the leading heavyweight contender. Just now Sharkey is signed to box for the Madison Square Garden Corporation in September. His contract calls for a $100,000 guarantee and a 25 per cent privilege.

"In the event Sharkey wins in September, he is likely to be found battling Jack Dempsey at Miami, Fla., next February. Sharkey has been offered $300,000 to meet the former champion at Tia Juana, but the chances are the tussle will go to Miami. In such an event, it is expected that the show will draw $1,500,000.

"If he keeps winning, Sharkey also has another big money shot with Tommy Loughran. Chicago has bid $150,000 for a Sharkey-Loughran mill, while Philadelphia has offered $100,000 for this match. All this will keep Sharkey out of the Hub.

"LOOKING over the local field I see several youngsters who have excellent opportunities facing them. Sammy Fuller and Jake Zeramby are rated with the best of the featherweights. My Diamond, Charley Parker, Jackie Donahue and Frankie Moore are also promising looking featherweights.

"Andy Callahan of Lawrence, a 138-pounder, should develop into a star. I have seen him knock out heavyweights at his training camp. He is aggressive, hits hard with each hand and loves to fight.

"With Mello resting, Johnny Indrisano, now under the management of Rip Valenti; Billy Murphy of Lowell and Charley Donavan of Dorchester will rival the local welterweight parade. Murphy recently made a sensational fight in New York, and with a few extra pounds under his belt he looks as though he is going somewhere along the fistic trail.

"ERNIE SCHAAF, of course, has made the grade. He showed his class by his great battle against Tommy Loughran. I would like to see Schaaf in there with the winner of the Maloney-Bartazzolo bout.

McVEY TO GIVE JONES HARD BATTLE

The principals in the battle for the colored middleweight crown, Gorilla Jones of Akron and Jack McVey of New York, are due to arrive in the Hub today to complete training for their bout at Braves Field next Monday night, and while this punching festival should prove sufficient to draw out the largest crowd of the season, Promoter Eddie Mack has arranged a double windup for this show.

Sammy Dorfman, the New York featherweight, regarded as one of the real topnotchers, is coming to the Hub in hopes of crushing the triumphant streak of the popular Jake Zeramby of Lynn, and these boys will clash in the second 10-rounder on the card.

Jones, on account of his knockout victory scored over Al Mello, is the big attraction for Hub fans who are anxious for another glimpse at this hard hitter. Yet the mere fact that McVey, a 25-year-old Negro, stopped Arthur Flynn of Lawrence in his only appearance in this city, indicates that the conqueror of Mello will have his hands full.

In addition to clinching the Zeramby-Dorfman bout, Promoter Mack tied up two eight-rounders of considerable local interest, Walter Peter, the hard hitting German who has made a big hit in the Hub, will face Frankie Stevens of Boston again. These rivals recently clashed on the Jones-Mello card, and it was the best bout of the night. Peter won a questionable decision.

In another eight-rounder, Petey (Kid) Carter of Boston will meet Jimmy Brown of Boston.

Defending Champion Holds No Real Title

Chicago, June 20 (AP)—Al Brown, spidery bantamweight, is "defending champion of the world" in the eyes of the New York State Athletic Commission, but he holds no title as far as the National Boxing Association is concerned.

Paul Prehn, president of the N. B. A., said last night the organization recognizes no one as champion of the 118-pound division, but plans an elimination contest to select a titleholder.

Many Novices Enter for Dilboy Bouts

An exceptionally large number of new boxers are entering for the 160 pounds novice class, to be contested at the Dilboy Post amateur boxing tournament, being held Wednesday night, at Dilboy Field, Somerville. The other classes, 118, 128, 135, 147 and heavyweight division, are open to all comers.

Entries may be forwarded to Dilboy Post, V. F. W., headquarters, Knights of Columbus building, Highland ave., Somerville.

BRAVES PLAY IN BENEFIT GAME

The Somerville Cubs will play a team made up of members of the Boston Braves in a benefit game at Lincoln Park, Somerville, tonight. The game is for the benefit of Jimmy Gilmore, former Somerville Cub outfielder who broke his leg last month.

Governor Allen is expected to be on hand to toss out the first ball at 6 sharp. William Flynn, the Somerville manager, was informed by Judge Fuchs that the following Brave players are to be present: Kent Greenfield, "Lou" Legett, George Sisler, Fred Maguire, Al Spohrer, Heinie Meuller, "Red" Barron, Bruce Cunningham and John Cooney.

B. C. FOOTBALL COACH TO WED

Joe McKenney, Boston College football coach, will turn benedict on Tuesday afternoon when he will be married to Miss Alice Ryan of Waltham at the Waleh City.

McKenney's friends, consisting of most of the prominent athletes in the history of Boston College as well as many other luminaries, gathered at the Elks last night to tender Joe a bachelor testimonial.

Kid McCoy and Jack O'Brien Battle Very Nifty in Opinion of Tad

For many years "Tad," T. A. Dorgan, one of the greatest cartoonists and sporting authorities that ever lived, covered the "fight" game. Shortly before his death "Tad" wrote and illustrated a series of stories, about ring battles which for thrills and sensationalism were stamped indelibly in his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake, but with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the stories.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Tad, in reporting this fight, wrote the story in letter form, sending it to the late Bill Hicks, formerly sporting editor of the New York Evening Journal.)

By TAD

Philadelphia, May 14, 1901

DEAR BILL—We all went over to Philadelphia on Saturday night to see the great McCoy-O'Brien fight and, on the dead, it was a pretty nifty go at that.

We had been reading in the papers about these two crafty gents for a couple of weeks, and on the train going over every sport had a different dope to go with that fight. Some had McCoy all in; others had the Kid better than Jeff, and all were sure that he'd go some for awhile anyway. There were a few bets made, you know, but it was almost even money that if there was a knockout the Kid would be the punk to land it. This looked like a good bet, and a few were marked up at this.

Finally the bell rang and the men stepped to the center. McCoy had that same colorless skin and that same little eye always peeking for an opening. He was as cool as an ice cream sandwich and as expressionless as a frankfurter. O'Brien, on the other hand, was all in the jumps, he seemed dead anxious to get around, and on his face was one of those smiles, you know the kind—well, they don't rub off or anything like that.

See, but he was confident, and all his friends around the ring just though him eggs and yelled for Jack to put the Kid away in the first round. He started off as though he intended to, swinging his arms like a windmill and jumping all around the ring.

He smothered McCoy with a lot of lefts and rights and had the Kid ducking as fast as he could to keep away from a few. He'd paw with that left and then chop the right over on his opponent's neck so fast you could hardly keep track of it as it was a fast, rip and tear, as though McCoy would never be able to go at such a pace. The latter was cool at that, and used to be saying: "Just a minute, kid; I'll be there." He had a satisfied look on his face as he let O'Brien spend him about being slow and outclassed.

McCoy certainly was outclassed as the bell rang, and O'Brien's entrance almost tore the roof off the place with cheers.

Every dog has his day, however, Bill, and in the next McCoy's corner. The gong dinged for round two and O'Brien was up in a jiffy, wearing the old smile and ready after McCoy as though he intended to put a stop to his career as a mixer right away. He rushed the pale face to a corner and proceeded to remove the Kid's dome as fast as he could. Something happened, however, while O'Brien was at work, and the smile came off. He kind of stopped thinking that McCoy was all in and a slow one. Yes, things had changed; O'Brien had a different view after that little mix. You know it looked like a big piperly to him and he was having things his own way, but McCoy though a little, too, and just dug a right about a foot into O'Brien's Adam's apple, and lo, the scene shifted. O'Brien stopped jumping around, his face wore a worried look and both his hands were busy as could be blocking what the Kid was sending his way. They were coming fast, too. McCoy's left was the busy hand following the Quaker City gent hard on the ear and nose. When he wanted to change he'd shoot the right up and O'Brien curled up like a pretzel to another it.

He went down from a right in one of these mixes, but was up in a jiffy, and slamming back hard and fast. The men were both mixing a moment later at the same side of the ring, near McCoy's corner, and O'Brien slipped to the floor once more. It was only for a second, though, but it made McCoy, and his friends feel fine, and maybe he didn't try with that deadly right for O'Brien's jaw.

There was a fierce mix just as the bell rang, and a new lot of rooters yelling after the men had seated themselves in their corners. The fight looked a little different after that round, and a good many of the fellows were wondering whether O'Brien would go the limit with McCoy or not. The O'Brien men didn't have a whole lot to say, but seemed to think that Jack would come through during the rest and hand the Kid something for that body punch he stopped.

In the third O'Brien came up with a few more business-like looks on his face, and a little more respect for McCoy. He started to force again, jumping to and out and trying to get over a right on McCoy's jaw. He was pushing the Kid harder now than ever before, and seemed willing to take any old chance at all. McCoy was using his left hook to good advantage here, and had O'Brien's right cut and bleeding. A few more lefts to the mouth cut that portion of Mc. O'Brien's face wide open, but he didn't seem to mind it at all; he was willing to take more and never stopped going after Jack. Both men seemed to slow up a bit here, and many blows went wild on the rounds. O'Brien was the fresher of the two, however, and in a mix landed a right to the Kid's body that was the goods. It must have hurt; sure it did. McCoy would rather fight at long range after that, but O'Brien was right on top of him, pushing him around and shooting lefts and rights from all directions. Just as the bell sounded he made it good by jabbing McCoy in the eye with his left. This was O'Brien's round.

It looked as though each would take a round so far, and the next which should come to McCoy did in great shape. He turned the thing all around here and waded into O'Brien as though he were tired of fooling and wanted to get home. The first punch he landed was a right to the body, and then a big curl for Jack, quick. McCoy never stopped at all, though, after he landed this. He went right after his man as O'Brien straightened up, and landed three straight lefts to the jaw, which almost loosened Jack's top-piece. The crowd was yelling like wild Indians, and as O'Brien's knees knocked they howled for the Kid to finish him. He went after Jack and tried to, but Jack came back, and there was the merriest mixup you ever saw with both on the ropes. Arms all over, heads going back and forward, knees knocking and the crowd yelling their heads off. As they came out of the mix both were puffing like freight engines, but smiling the best they could. O'Brien, who was the fresher of the pair, kept forcing matters, trying to tire McCoy, who looked a little the worse for wind. As the bell sounded the Kid looked weary and O'Brien was looking for keeps. The seconds in both corners worked hard on the men to bring them through for the next round and succeeded pretty well.

McCoy tried to get away with O'Brien in the preceding round, you know, and when the bell rang for this he didn't seem to care much about going home. He was willing to stall around and have O'Brien fall all over the ring trying to land. The Kid's strong one was to land that right without a whole lot of extra work, you know, but the crowd didn't like that game.

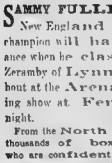
SAMMY FULLER'S title as New England featherweight champion will hang in the balance when he clashes with Jake Zeramby of Lynn in a 10-round bout at the Arena A. C.'s opening show at Fenway Park tonight.

From the North Shore will come thousands of boxing enthusiasts who are confident that Zeramby's superior ability as a boxer will enable him to wrest the title from the punching Fuller. The latter is a slight favorite.



Jack Conway

The rival boxers are each in splendid condition and eager for the sound of the song which will send them into action. The boxing commission has okayed Miller's light hand, which necessitated the postponement of the bout from last week until tonight.

The tussle between Fuller and Zeramby is what the promoters term a "natural." It will bring together the two outstanding featherweights in New England. There is intense local rivalry between the two warriors and as a result the going is sure to be fast.

Fuller is a deadly puncher. The American Pancho Villa is able to deliver a knockout belt with each hand. Since he started his recent come back drive he has tipped over four opponents. The crafty Chick Suggs was the latest of Fuller's opponents to bite the dust.

Fuller is all action in the ring. He blazes away with both hands and seldom takes a backward step.

ZERAMBY, a youth of 20, is one of the most sensational youngsters to come to the front in the boxing game in recent years. He has won 29 out of his 30 professional fights. He is a clever boxer than Fuller, while he is able to score with a stinging punch.

THE winner of tonight's bout will be in line for matches with Kid Chocolate and Andre Routis.

Fuller and Zeramby will share the limelight with Fy Diamond of the West End and Frankie Moore of Medford who will collide in the semifinal of 10 rounds.

THE rest of the card is also brietling with lively bouts. Leslie Baker of Watertown, former amateur champion, will try to keep on victory trail when he collides with Joe Weisman of the coast guard in a four-round mill. Baker looks like one of the most promising of the local boxers. He is particularly effective when letting fly with right hand punches.

Frankie O'Connor of South Boston will clash with Frankie Mason of the North End over the six-round route.

STARTED YALE VICTORY

Two-year-old Leonard K. Horner, mascot of the Yale baseball team, threw out the first ball in the first Harvard-Yale baseball game, Tuesday. Tradition has it, at the annual ball game that a member of the graduating class of the current year acquire an heir to act as mascot on the return to the campus for the third alumni reunion. ## All in Readiness for H-Y Classic

GALES FERRY, Ct., June 20—Harvard and Yale crew quarters today began to fill up with alumni, most of whom pulled an oar on the Thames from one to 50 years ago. The annual regatta came to the Thames just 51 years ago and, of the first Yale crew which rowed here, Julian W. Curtiss, bow oar, is in camp. He has been a Yale rowing adviser and rowing committee chairman more than half the time since then.

With the close of the baseball season, the graduates who attended commencement at Cambridge and New Haven turned toward the Thames for the next athletic number of the commencement program. The surface of the river began to be trim with yachts and the biggest display of craft which ever dotted the Thames is assured. The 40 boats of the American Yacht Club started their annual race at Rye, N. Y., and are expected here about daybreak.

Referee William A. Mekleham and Valentine Chappell, chairman of the regatta committee, have made a final inspection of the course and of the crews. They said when it was completed that every lane flag is in place, and that the steamers at the half-mile posts have given the four-mile route from Winthrop Point to the drawbridge in New London a traditional aspect.

The inspection of the coxswains is an innovation recently established in the annual regatta program.

ANOTHER possible complication that today faced the rowing camps was the failure of the drawbridge over the present footbridge to open when the yacht Captiva, owned by John Hay Whitney of New York city, asked for entrance. The Yale crews were on board and failure of the bridge to swing ajar compelled the crew to leave the yacht, scamper to a telephone, order a launch to come from the Yale quarters and get them.

The incident was annoying, especially because of the extremely hot weather, which has been causing the weights of the Yale oarsmen to tumble badly. The Ya'e eight is the lightest which has been sent here in several years and dropping an average of several pounds to the mat has caused Coach Leader to stop all severe work and to limit the daily spin to a mere conditioning paddle.

The rowing managers are pushing the New London city highway commission to make it certain that the bridge will not stick when the yachts and other river craft are crowding each other this afternoon and fighting for places along the course.

The bridge was inspected again this morning and the city officials believe that the trouble was from a slight cause and that it has been adjusted.

Three "Twi" League Contests Carded

By DICK McSWEENEY

THREE teams in the Twilight League will strive to entertain visitors and annex victories this afternoon when Roslindale's heavy-hitting nine is due to oppose South Boston at C. of Lee Playground. Dorchester goes to Reading while the home club has taken on a new look since the recent start Quincy trundles its bat-bags to Malden.

South Boston gave Dorchester a setback on Tuesday and public opinion in the vicinity of the Aquarium seems to favor the homeboys against tonight's guests.

Roslindale's hurler for the affair will be Buckley, ably assisted by an infield reading from first to third as follows: Peppard, Chisholm, McCarthy, and Moore. Moore is playing an especially fine game for Roslindale and his hitting is of the long thump variety.

ORDINARILY, Reading is a peaceful town, but it won't be the same restful place tonight when Dorchester arrives. The Rub team has a firm grip on the top berth of the league standing and interference with its exalted position on the part of Reading won't be tolerated.

Chief toleration opponent for Dorchester will be "Punk" McDonald, able hurler. He seems to have the stuff and stamina necessary to make Reading sluggers fold up like a pocket map.

Reading is ready with Gormley shooting his slants plateward. Baseball has taken a firm foothold in Reading and the club seems destined to climb.

Frank Turner will trot his Malden team out on the green grass and well-rolled base-paths tonight in order to see what the bunch will do against the invading Quincy players.

Cool Weather Aids Crews on Hudson

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 20—Cooler weather made it possible for the many crews training here for the annual regatta, to get in long sessions today. Some time trials were rowed.

These last probably were the final tough tryouts for the big race as the coaches do not care to risk losing the fine edge of condition which previous work has given.

Massachusetts Tech, which rowed over the full course of four miles in 20 minutes in its first time trial here, is doing satisfactory work. Twenty minutes is not unusual, but, taking course conditions into consideration, it is very respectable time.

Tech a freshman eight stands a better chance in its class than the M. I. T. varsity crew. There are some fine oarsmen in the boat, and the eight is a smooth aggregation in action.

CORNELL, figured as the entry to battle Columbia and California all the way in the last race Monday evening, received a tough blow when it was reported the ill captain, S. W. Abbott, who was stroke of the crew last season, and who has been the main cog this year at No 2, would be lost to the crew from Lake Cayuga because of illness.

Abbott has been rowing for a long time and was the best man in his crew. Without him the Cornellians hardly can be counted in the favorites through the race.

Columbia is easing off a bit now Rich Glendon is a master in the art of conditioning, and it is certain that he will send his men to the starting line Monday in the best possible mental and physical shape.

Grange to Play for Chicago Bears

Chicago, June 20 (AP)—Red Grange, former University of Illinois "Galloping Ghost," is to haunt professional football gridirons for the Chicago Bears next season.

Grange yesterday signed a contract with George Halas, manager of the Bears, bringing him back to the team with which he broke into professional football. The former Illini star played his first pro engagement with the Bears in 1925, but spent the seasons of 1926 and 1927 as manager of the New York Yankees. He retired from action before the close of last season because of a knee injury which, he told Halas, now is in shape.

Harry Cooper Is Shooting Good Golf

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., June 20 (INS)—Harry Cooper, Buffalo golf professional, loomed as a formidable candidate for the United States open championship today as a result of his easy victory in the Shawnee open, concluded here yesterday.

Cooper completed the 72-hole medal test in 294 strokes, four less than the total of his nearest rival, Billy Burke.

Burns Goes to A.'s

Philadelphia, June 20 (INS)—George Burns, first baseman, who formerly played with Philadelphia, Cleveland and the Yankees, has been signed by the Athletics again as a substitute.

Bobby Jones Shoots 70 at Winged Foot

Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Testing the championship west course at the Winged Foot today, Bobby Jones astounded onlookers with a brilliant 70, the lowest score yet made by any contender over the links which next week will be the scene of the open tournament.

The premier golfer went out in 39, but more than made up for this shaky (for him) showing by covering the return trip in 31. The inward trip was five under par.

Charlestown Police Win Tug-o'-War

For the second time, the Charlestown police tug-o-war team were victorious over a team of Charlestown firemen at the athletic night of the men of St. Catherine's parish, held in the school yard. The police team, victors a year ago, won the second match by three inches. On the team were Mike Murphy, Tom Tighe and Lieut. Thayer and Alfred Metcalf, anchorman. The fire department team was John McNamara, Martin Johnson, Roger Kelley and Billy Flynn, anchorman.

Gus Sonnenberg, champion wrestler, was a guest of the athletic night and was given an ovation by the crowd of more than 1200 men as he led the march of guests to the ringside. Francis M. Ducey was master of ceremonies, and there were wrestling bouts, in which Jim Maloney and Honeyboy Finnegan were featured as referee, a dozen boxing bouts, motion pictures of the Sharkey-Stribling fight and musical entertainment.

RETAIL STORES IN 9TH ANNUAL GOLF TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

In the ninth annual golf tournament of the Retail Trade Board which will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Salem Country Club, more than 100 Boston retail store owners and executives will compete. All that is necessary for the reshaping of all previous turnouts is a break from the weather man.

The William Filene's Sons Co. have been so successful in previous conquests for store championships that for weeks the other stores have been trying to unearth the most promising golfers in their respective organizations. The representatives of Filenes won the Schaschke Cup two years ago, and captured the first leg on the Frost Market last year at Unicorn. The new store trophy was donated by E. J. Frost of Filene's last year and immediately his contemporaries came through with the four best net scores.

There will be four gross and eight net prizes and awards will be made for the most 3's, 4's, 5's, 6's, etc. Also, the player taking the most strokes on any one hole will not be forgotten, nor will the contestant who loses the most balls.

INVERSHIN IS WINNER OVER REIGH COUNT

Ascot, Eng., June 20.—In one of the most brilliant Ascot races in years, Inversh, owned by Reid Walker, today won the historic Ascot Gold Cup event.

Reigh Count, Mrs. John D. Hertz's American thoroughbred, was second. Palais Royal 2d was third.

This was almost the first race of the British season where the predictions of racing experts were realized for Inversh, winner of last year's gold cup race, was favorite to repeat his performance this season.

Reigh Count was second favorite at 4 to 1.

It was a magnificent race and witnessed by a magnificent throng. Royalty studded the boxes and all one who was anyone in English society was on hand to watch the high point in the historic four-day meeting here.

The Ascot Gold Cup race is the world's greatest long distance flat racing classic. It is run over a two and a half-mile course for purse money of $20,000 and the Ascot Gold Cup.

Cheam, owned by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, finished fourth. Of the continental contenders Cheam had been most highly favored but Palais Royal, owned by Jacques Wittouck, the Belgian banker, appeared considerable support before the race.

Inversh in paid his backers $ on 1. Reigh Count 4 to 1 and Palais Royal 10 to 1.

There were 11 starters.

Inversh's victory was complete and conclusive, but Reigh Count gave him a strong battle. The winner finished two lengths ahead of the winner of last year's Kentucky Derby, and three lengths separated Reigh Count from Palais Royal.

The race started seven minutes late, as considerable difficulty was encountered in lining up the highly-strung group of thoroughbreds.

WOMEN SPORT STARS IN A. L. GAMES

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Katherine Meade of the Boston Swimming Association and Mary Carew of Medford, two of the best sprinters in this section, compete in the American Legion department of Massachusetts barbecue and field day, held Saturday afternoon on the playgrounds at Norumbega Park.

Miss Carew, winner of the National indoor 40-yard championship at Matoa at the Boston Garden will meet Katherine Meade in the New England 50-yard title race. Miss Carew also is entered and has signed to compete in the running high jump and 100-yard handicap.

SPRINTERS READY.

Another pair of flashy starters in the 50-yard dash competition will be Olive Hasenfus of Needham and Florence MacDonald. The pair of girl athletes both were members of Uncle Sam's Olympic team.

Another star athlete and member of Uncle Sam's Olympic team of girls who competes on Saturday is Albina Osipowich of Worcester Rec. Club auxiliary. The Olympic 100 meters champion is to compete in the 100 meters New England championship, held in the Charles River.

ROLLING PIN CONTEST ON.

There also will be other feature attractions in the sport line including the women's rolling pin throwing contest.

Lillian Kennen from Arlington high school, an athletic star and present junior New England indoor 8-pound shot put champion, will compete.

Arlington high school has also entered Dorothy Mulhane in the 100-yard handicap and the baseball throw, and Catherine Carew in the 100-yard handicap, baseball throw and the running broad jump.

"Boom Boom" Takes Field as First of Drama's Summer Temptations

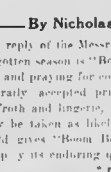
By Nicholas Young

THE defiant reply of the Messrs. Shubert to a gone and almost forgotten season is "Boom Boom," for the moment tempting fate and praying for cooler evenings at the Wilbur. On the generally accepted principle that summer shows thrive upon froth and lingerie, girls and gaiety, this entertainment may be taken as likely fare for sweltering days. An open field gives "Boom Boom" better than an even chance to display its enduring qualities.



Nicholas Young

THE show's advantages are not altogether arranged for the eager eye, as you might quaintly imagine, for pert and saucy comedy marks the course of the show as it weaves its way through mazes of song and dance. Frank McIntyre, famed for heavy duty in farce and comedy, leaves no doubt in your mind on the value of the cold bottle and middle-aged philandering as timely aids to better and livelier nights in the theater. Not in many seasons has Mr. McIntyre found himself the possessor of so good a role, or one that lends itself so readily to his own brand of humor. He is the brightest and gayest toiler in, "Boom Boom." You may measure his comedy in tonnage, but its enjoyment reaches down to the last disappearing ounce.

IN ITS fabrication from the Parisian farce of Louis Verneuil, the adapters of "Boom Boom" have made sure that little of the spice of the original play is omitted. So much of it is retained that one might honestly wonder whether the prevailing high temperature of Tremont st. is not more than matched by the safety exploits on the Wilbur stage. It is all very gay and, at odd moments, somewhat naughty.

TO THE lover of good dancing, both plain and fancy, "Boom Boom" offers tempting bait. The ensembles, arranged in twin groups, are sent into frequent action, and to excellent purpose. In this respect the show gallops forward in smart order. There is an abundance of novelty to keep you awake and pleasantly interested. Among the specialized dance numbers, those contributed by Kendall Capps and Nell Kelly, two tireless toilers, are perhaps the best, while Cortez and Peggy capture your fancy with the more refined parlor variety done in whirlwind fashion.

MR. McINTYRE is not without pace-setting competition in the persistent comedy of "Boom Boom" Harry Welsh, as a road house waiter, holds the stage and his audience for the better part of the second act. Only a case hardened grouch could keep back the laughs. Beauty, too, has its place in "Boom Boom" and makes on most of it Jane Alden and Marcella Swanson mix talent with blendish adornments, while the Four Nightingales, lesser luminaries, but fair to look upon, unpack a wide assortment of close harmony.

AS summer shows move into town—and out—much is usually expected, though not always gathered. "Boom Boom," however, should prove no disappointment.

EDISON TELLS ELECTRICITY'S FUTURE

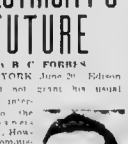
By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, June 20.—Edison did not grant his usual birthday interview to the newspapers this year. However I complimented him in a message to greet him in Florida and the hint of Edison's electrical genius soon resulted in the following message which he poured out over the telephone. We will leave many things behind when we die, Edison declares.



B. C. Forbes

The interviewer, Dudley Nicholls, wrote out his questions to overcome Edison's deafness. Here are the most important of Mr. Edison's many questions and answers:

"Will wind yield a commercial action, and rain power be ever be harnessed in any way to steam and river power as at the present time?"

Edison "Volcanic heat is a ready harnessed for power purposes, several places in Italy, one in California, tidal power in Maine and other places.

"Do you think sunlight will ever be turned directly into electricity on a large scale for man's use?"

"Yes."

"Do you hold that electricity is the ultimate form of energy in Nature, or do you think we may conceive of some other form that may be developed and used in the future? For instance, is there any form of energy beyond light, as radio-activity, gravitation and electricity?"

"I think these are other forms of energy not yet discovered."

"Is it likely that any new way to furnish electricity will be found beyond the battery and dynamo? Can you imagine any other form of electric generator that may be put upon in the illimitable future?"

"We may in the future get electricity direct from coal. It has been done in a small way."

"Do you think all our means of storing electricity are already discovered? Perhaps this amount be saving. Do you think some even storage battery will ever be made?"

"It would be extremely difficult, but the plan ever wished to point it to be beaten. But it possible."

"Comparing the electrical industry with the life of man, being a machine which is now grown and therefore can go on indefinitely, at what stage of life do you think it now stands? At middle or old age?"

Edison "Telling baby."

"Has the independent inventor been supplanted by bodies of industrial research workers? That is, has the day of private research given way to the day of corporation research work in applied science?"

Edison "No."

"Do you think future inventions will issue from private individuals or from the great commercial laboratories?"

"Mostly from private individuals, or from the exceptional man in a corporation laboratory."

"If the work of invention should be shifted from private individuals to the big corporation laboratories, do you think incentive to invention will be weakened or lost?"

Edison: "No, what is wanted is a patent commission or court, all patents to be granted by that court in trust for the inventor, the court issuing licenses always reserving a portion of the royalty for the inventors, which he cannot convey or impair.

"Do you think most new discoveries will be in the radio field or in the older one of wired electricity?"

"I think wired electricity will be dominant without some great discovery and new knowledge."

"Is your opinion will we ever have wireless trans-mission of electrical power?"

"It's extremely doubtful except in a small way."

"Without wireless power do you think that aircraft can ever be electrically driven?"

"Extremely doubtful."

"Do you believe the time will come when the world petroleum supply will be exhausted and man will turn to electric vehicles?"

"If petroleum was exhausted, we can get power from sunlight by from powdered coal, benzol, alcohol."

"Do you think man will always be able to create from Nature as much power as he will need?"

"Yes."

In October Edison is scheduled to receive a world's tribute which as no human being has ever received. May he be in first-class fettle for this planned celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee.

COMMISSION ON TARIFF TURNS OUT BIG JOB

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

George P. Comer, chief investigator of the United States Tariff commission, in an article in The Tariff Review for June, 1929, summarizes the work done by the tariff commission to assist the committee on ways and means in drafting the new tariff bill as follows: "The work for the ways and means committee may be statistically expressed by saying that the commission has prepared summaries of tariff information to the extent of 3,000 pages, covering all the articles in the Tariff Act of 1922.

"Without going to the extreme of estimating how far the printed tables of these summaries would reach if laid end to end it may be stated that thousands of multi-columned tables are included in these summaries, each table summarizing the statistics for many years, usually 10 years, respecting production, imports, prices, and other related subjects. Approximately 500 separate manuscripts were prepared between December 1 and February 20 by experts of the commission's staff, typed, reviewed, and revised by senior members of the staff, retyped in many cases, and then reviewed and passed by the commissioners."

signs of a falling off in domestic consumption of the red metal, and thinks foreign buying will increase. No doubt he bases his expectations of buying Overseas somewhat on the success of the reparations agreement.

Atchison's problems evidently differ from those of many other railroads. President W. B. Storey says: "The joker in the proposition of getting passenger trains off the rails in order to handle freight more efficiently is that the regulatory bodies will not let us cut down passenger service to meet the drop in traffic. Our passenger train mileage is as great as it was in 1920, and even a little greater. I understand that some roads in the East were able to submit bus service when their passenger traffic left them, but in our territory we cannot. In that since nearly everybody has a car and it is not our territory."

With a nationwide "safety first" campaign on the air, it seems strange that two Massachusetts accidents within a few hours of each other should emphasize what Robert Burns had to say about "best laid schemes." In Brookline a man alone in his garage is killed when a jack slips and his automobile, moving only a few inches, crushes him between fender and wall. At the General Electric plant in Pittsfield a section of machinery moved one and a half inches, a workman in the first fatal accident there in two years. The originator of Boston's "Safety First" was a Massachusetts man, who lost his life as a result of a moment's carelessness in crossing the light way.

A new business and industrial consultant group has been formed which plans to offer to New England manufacturers and merchandising expert counsel in matters of organization, production, merchandising and other business problems. Their work includes the publication of a series of monthly leaflets on business and industrial subjects and they will maintain an informal speakers' bureau making available, without charge, to technical societies, trade, industrial, organization and employee meetings speakers on business problems. Those sponsoring the campaign are Bigelow, Kent, Willard & Co.; Dodge & Day; Ernst and Ernst and Freeland & Warren Inc.

American Woolen Co. has made the following change to be effective June 24: Alvan F. Jealous has been appointed assistant general manufacturing agent, with headquarters in the Boston office. Following changes are effective July 1: E. B. Wade, assistant agent of the Westbrook Mills, has resigned and will be succeeded by H. H. Eddy, formerly agent of the Saranac Mills. H. E. Shulze, formerly agent of the Ray Mills has been placed in charge of the Saranac Mills. Lewen E. Foss, formerly agent of the Indian Spring Mills has been placed in charge of the Ray Mills.

Chairman Rand of Remington Rand, Inc., states: "The progress made during the six months ended March 31 is being well maintained in the first-June quarter. Usual seasonal recession at this time of year has not been in evidence. Manufacturing and operating costs continue to decline. Earnings in the quarter ended March 31 were 100 per cent ahead of the 1928 period. This improvement should be maintained throughout the current fiscal year."

Copying an innovation originated by the late William M. Wood when he was president of the American Woolen Co., within a comparatively brief period the central office of a number of cotton mills has been moved from Boston to the plant. To some extent this is part of the campaign to reduce expenses which is being waged by all manufacturers; rents, obviously are much cheaper in mill communities than in Boston, while there will be additional savings in clerk hire, telephone and other overhead items. The management will also be right at the point where the manufacturing is taking place.

Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co. sailed on the Ile de France for a six weeks' vacation trip to Denmark, Norway, Sweden and the North Cape with D. C. Stone and Stuart Strong. Nevada Consolidated Copper Co., in his new seagoing yacht, the "Cyprus" which has been finished at Kiel. When asked for his opinion regarding copper, Mr. Hayden stated: "I consider that the world consumption of copper today is equal to mine output. As soon as refinery output is reduced to what current mine production is, these figures will show themselves."

Samuel C. Lamport, president of the Lamport Manufacturing Supply Co., urges cotton mill and textile executives to be listed on the New York Cotton Exchange. Says textile industry needs broader use of the Read-Morrison Manufacturing Company, reversing a previous decision of the lower court which had awarded damages of $900,000 against the Mead-Morrison Manufacturing Company in favor of the Bear Tractors, Inc.

Sentiment among best informed investors has rapidly developed in favor of bank and insurance company stocks. To meet the ever-increasing demand for detailed information regarding assets and market values of stocks of these institutions, the First National Corporation of Boston has prepared a circular giving statistical data on banks with deposits of about $50,000,000 or over, in 31 cities throughout the United States, and on the more important insurance companies.

Among the methods suggested for the aid of national banks, he said, are: Permit nation-wide branch banking, relieve national banks of state taxation and limit finances of integrate transactions to national banks.

BRAKE CONTROL PATENTS SOLD TO BENDIX

Bendix Aviation Company has purchased outright for cash all claims and patents to the Stinson brake control mechanisms, according to an announcement by Edward A. Stinson, president of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation of Wayne, Mich.

The Stinson company will continue to manufacture the brake control under the sale agreement, and Bendix will have no other patents owned or controlled by the Stinson company may be incorporated in the Stinson design.

The Stinson patent is for a brake control system combined with the rudder control mechanism on any type of airplane using wheels-type landing gear. It allows for use of either differential or single application of one brake independent of the other. Acquisition of the Stinson patents gives the Bendix company practical control of the airplane brake wheel control system.

Until the last two years practically every airplane was equipped with a tail skid at the rear of the plane instead of a wheel, which served as a brake for the entire plane on landing. With brakes on the wheels much smaller landing fields may be used. Former landing run length required by an airplane for a complete stop was about 5000 feet. With the use of brakes the distance is reduced more than one-half.

"The idea of combination brake and rudder control system is the keynote upon which a great many engineers have been working, said Edward Stinson. "Under the new arrangement an exchange of patents will be allowed, which will greatly benefit the entire aviation industry."

Magazine Page

Many Dainty Recipes

THE latest news and sketches of fashions appear each day on the magazine page of the Boston Evening American. Also Martha Lee's helps on cooking and the menu. Recipes of the most approved chefs are among the many features appearing here and should be read by every woman.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

NEVER adopt a rigorous diet program without consulting your physician. More harm than can be realized results from diets which do not agree with one. A prescribed diet by your physician is the only one which will really help you. There is as much danger in under eating as in over feeding.

Rhubarb Recipes

SOME there be to whom the word "rhubarb" has the effect of "setting their teeth on edge."

But this, I fend, is usually due to the limited variety of rhubarb dishes with which they are familiar. All too often rhubarb sauce and rhubarb pie are the entire repertoire of the homemaker.

Rhubarb really is extremely versatile. Tooth, the rhubarb and its preserves, rhubarb and pineapple, rhubarb and prunes, rhubarb and strawberries, scalloped rhubarb, beaked rhubarb, rhubarb pudding, and for the convalescent refreshing rhubarb water.

Rhubarb contains probably will be your first thought and a delicously sweet one.

This is the how of its preparation.

Martha Lee

RHUBARB AND PINEAPPLE

Take equal parts of rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces, and fresh pineapple diced. Add sugar to sweeten, about 2 cups of sugar to 1 quart of fruit. Let stand 1 or more hours. Place in sauce pan, let heat slowly until sugar is dissolved and cook without stirring until rhubarb is soft but not broken. Cool and serve.

STEAMED RHUBARB

Cut off leaves and root; wash, skin and cut stalks in ½ inch pieces. Put 1 quart sliced rhubarb in double boiler, add 2 cups sugar. Cover and cook until rhubarb is soft, but not mashed.

RHUBARB SAUCE

Skin and cut stalks of rhubarb in ½ inch pieces; scald with boiling water. Let stand 10 minutes and drain. Add water to keep from burning, cook until soft, then sweeten. Flavor with the grated yellow rind of orange.

BAKED RHUBARB

Cut off leaves and root, wash and cut, without skinning, stalks of rhubarb in ½ inch pieces. Place in baking dish, add 2 cups sugar to 1 quart rhubarb. Cover, let bake in moderate oven until rhubarb is tender and deep red in color.

RHUBARB AND STRAWBERRY JAM

Four cups sugar, 3 cups cooked rhubarb, 3 cups strawberries or raspberries.

If raspberries are used, pick over, wash, mash, and cook quickly at first until soft. Strain, and set aside juice.

Use tender red rhubarb, trim off hard ends, wash, and without skinning, cut into small pieces. Mix fruit and sugar, let stand several hours. Put in preserving kettle, let cook gently until clear and thick. Place in jelly glasses.

MARTHA LEE

RHUBARB CONSERVE

To 3 cups of rhubarb cut, add 3 cups of sugar and the juice of 3 oranges and 1 lemon. Cook 20 minutes. Then add the grated rind of orange and lemon and ½ lb. of chopped almonds. Cook 5 minutes longer.

RHUBARB AND FIG PRESERVE

2 lbs. rhubarb, 2 lemons, juice and rind
2 lbs. figs, 2 lbs. sugar

Wash figs and rhubarb and cut in small pieces. Grate the lemon rind, and sugar and lemon juice and stir often until juice is formed. Place in preserving kettle, cook gently for 30 minutes, add the grated lemon rind, boil 15 minutes longer until thick and clear. Place in jelly glasses and pour paraffine over top.

PRUNES AND RHUBARB

1 qt. sliced rhubarb
½ cup sugar

Stew prunes with sugar and mix with uncooked rhubarb. Let cook together five minutes. Cool and serve.

RHUBARB WATER

Three stalks rhubarb, ½ cup sugar, 3 cups water.

Wash the rhubarb, without peeling, cut in 1-inch lengths into a bowl, add sugar and boiling water. Cover and set away to cool. Strain and serve cold. Pink stalks will give the water a pretty color.

A June Bouquet

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

OF all the bouquets that were ever assembled, the loveliest of all, to my mind, is the bouquet of loveliness which one sees everywhere on these wondrous June days. The bouquet which consists of the bride and her attendants.

Have you ever seen a bunch of flowers lovelier than these exquisite human blossoms? The bride, like a lily in her snowy white, with the misty veil floating around her like a tender cloud. The bridesmaids hovering around in rainbow colors lending a gently subtle contrast. Like the shy little flowers who have inspired their gowns, they cast envyously admiring glances at the lily who floats, rather than walks, in their midst.

Truly, of all the months, June is surely the most perfect for a wedding. Then Nature seems to be at her most gorgeous; seems, indeed, to realize that this is the Lovers' month and does everything possible to make this old earth a veritable paradise.

And Love touches everything with a soft happiness that makes the eyes of the flowers glisten with a brilliance that outshines the dewdrops on their flower namesakes. For Love always brings beauty and happiness, even to the plainest countenance. And all those who are but spectators at this time of times find themselves remembering the day when they, too, were part of "The June Bouquet" and Love brings to them happy memories, as it brings a glad anticipation of eternal bliss to the Lily who is, indeed, the fairest flower of the bouquet.

Have Your Habits Become Your Enemies?

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., PH.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

EVERYBODY knows that there are good habits as well as bad ones.

But how easy it is to slip into habits that are really harmful without realizing it!

For instance, this business of getting up too late, bolting breakfast and running for the train or trolley, so as not to be late for work. Nine out of ten men do that day in and day out.

They know it is foolish; they are forever making resolutions about getting out of bed 15 minutes earlier, but somehow the pernicious habit grips them, and they cannot break it.

Reading the newspaper at breakfast is another bad habit. Discussing business problems at luncheon is in the same class.

When we are at meals the blood mass should be down in the abdominal regions, so as to carry away into the circulation the products of digestion.

But when we think too much while eating, a lot of blood stays in the brain. The result is that we do not think as effectively as we should, while at the same time we count all sorts of digestive disturbances.

Then take smoking. If tobacco is to be enjoyed it must not be overdone. What happens to the average smoker however, is that automatically, through habit, he lights one cigarette after another, or a pipe or cigar, and he scarcely realizes that he is smoking at all.

Other habits undermine also—habits that of and by themselves should be beneficial.

Take the habit of staying home nights, sitting by the proverbial fireside, happy in the bosom of the family.

A fine habit, you say?

Yes, to sit home nights as a rule, but certainly it is not wise to overdo this good habit with the result that you become a staid, stick-in-the-mud, never visiting your friends, never indulging in social relationship, never taking in a play, or a concert or a movie.

Good habits like rich food can act as a boomerang.

Therefore study your good habits as well as your bad ones and see if they are not making you stale. Don't become an automaton.

Don't do the same thing in the same way day in and day out.

Do unusual things once in a while. Break up your routine existence. Put some snap and pep into your life.

Upset yourself once in a while. Surprise yourself.

To follow your habits, to give way to them, is, of course, traveling along the lines of least resistance.

It's a lazy way of living. It puts the least strain upon your thinking and your effort.

Nevertheless, such behavior can be deadening.

Subtly it saps your vitality and initiative. It makes of you a machine.

It would be a good thing if every man and woman changed most of his habits at least once every five years. It would give him a new outlook on life. It would make his life a hundred-fold more interesting.

Whether your habits originally were good or bad do not hesitate to scrap them if they have got you into a rut.

AUCTION BRIDGE by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

A PROFITABLE SET

Auction Bidding: South and West pass. North bids a Heart and East a Spade. South, though holding six Hearts to the Jack, is wholly lacking in tricks outside of Hearts and cannot assist. West passes. North shows his second suit, bidding two Diamonds. East, also with a two-suiter, bids three Clubs. South now raises his partner's bid to three Hearts, and West bids three Spades. North bids four Hearts. East and South passing. West bids four Spades, which becomes the contract.

Contract Bidding: The bidding would proceed as at Auction Bridge, except that East's showing of a two-suiter by his bid of three Clubs and South's overcall with three Hearts. West should jump to the game bid of four Spades.

The Play: South would ordinarily open the suit first bid by his partner, but, holding a singleton Diamond and a high trump, he opens the second suit instead. Diamonds, with the expectation of securing a Diamond ruff. North, holding the 2 of Diamonds, after seeing Dummy, reads the 3 led as a singleton and knows that East can hold but one more. Therefore should North lead his second high Diamond and then a third for South to ruff, Declarer, if unable to shut out South's ruff would discard a Heart. Which, if a singleton, would still leave him a chance for game. North therefore first leads the Ace of Hearts and follows with two Diamonds, the second of which South ruffs with the Queen over East's 10. Thus the first four tricks were taken by the adversaries before Declarer could get started. Declarer was set one trick, but it was a profitable set, since South-South would have made game at four Hearts, with a large honor score.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

A Wife's Meditations

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN these days of professional flappers a woman doesn't appear to age any faster than a comic strip baby.

Ten years ago love was suffering from malnutrition; now it is dying from overstimulation and nervous indigestion.

Considering that love is the most absorbing game of a woman's life, it is astonishing how little she ever learns about when to hold and when to play her winning cards, or how to keep a poker face.

Many a modern love affair seems to be just one long struggle for supremacy, which begins in the taxicab and ends in the divorce court.

To make a man happy don't tell him that he is brilliant or noble; just tell him that he works too hard, that he spends too much money, that he is "misunderstood" or that he is "different."

heart easily to anyone—and he hated to her!

On the fifteenth of August the Persian little force at Tawella was still holding out. The relief column was on its way but had not yet succeeded in pushing through the whole neighborhood was in the hands of the rebels. Kelekiyah was still outwardly quiet.

Colin, sitting at Stanhope's desk in the Serai, tried to think of every possibility which might cause or encourage an outbreak. She was in charge of the Serai, for both Stanhope and Petrie had gone out to settle a dispute some two or three miles to the north and would not be back till the next day.

And now she was in charge of Kelekiyah, if only for a day and a night.

She had some forms she wished to give Ibrahim and she walked into his office. It was empty. She moved a piece of blotting paper to make room for the papers she wished to leave and uncovered a letter addressed to Stanhope.

Why had it not been brought to her? It was from Sayid Abdulla Rashid. It must have come this morning. And what was the trouble? A sheet of thin paper lay over the lower part of the document and certain letters had been traced through unconnected letters. She took up another piece of paper and copied them hastily and then walked back to her room to puzzle it needed a key to decipher the meaning. It must be something urgent, Ibrahim would not ignore it blindly . . . Abdulla won't let anyone disturb us."

"I couldn't be better. But I'm going to call you back any day."

"I know it's terribly urgent. Tell me."

"It is. I've been travelling with one of the worst firebrands and there's to be a meeting in Kelekiyah tonight."

"Three hours after sunset at Sayid Abdulla's house."

"Good God! How did you find it out? The message can only have arrived this morning."

"I discovered it this afternoon.—in code in a letter from Saad ibn Rashid to Stanhope which Ibrahim was hiding from me."

"Well, this meeting will be the turning point. You know Kelekiyah has been holding out against the blandishments of the insurgents—because Stanhope was on our side,—so my particular villain has decided to use his strongest card tonight. The wobblers, on the pledged insurgents, don't want to give themselves away till they're ready to strike, so they've agreed to take part in the rising but only by verbal promises, never in writing, which means they've left themselves a loophole of escape. And that doesn't suit my villainous friend Daham—naturally—he wants to compromise them beyond hope of escape. And tonight he means to do it.

"He's brought with him the document with full instructions about the rising. In this area which tribes are to be responsible for the destruction of the railway, which for the killing of British personnel—you're all to be wiped out—who are to garrison the town, etc. It's all in this black document which comes from the supreme command, and he's going to make investigations at the meeting put his signature to it."

"We must get that document; when they've all signed—that's what you mean, isn't it, Sandy?"

"Right again! We must do a round-up at the end of the meetings.

"I'm going to change parts with you, Colin. It may be a case of fisticuffs. You must arrange with your police officer to have everything ready by nine o'clock. I can't like your part, Colin, for you'll have to go to the meeting as you are—in these clothes. Daham would suspect something if I didn't turn up and might call off the meeting. You won't have to do anything except be there. I've copied out your toothache trick and have had my head bandaged for the last day or two and he won't expect you're not there. I'll tell you what you have to do a bit later—but you'll be low at the meeting. Daham will do all the talking and he can talk, only as soon as the last signature is collected you must say your tooth is bad again. Then you must get something for it and leave the house. We'll have crept up and that'll be the signal.

"You must get back here first and out of these rags and go on to the Serai a few minutes later.

"It really was a desperate venture they were planning as Sandy knew how much Daham stood to lose if he failed.

A little later Colin returned: "I've arranged with Khalil effendi, the police officer, to meet him at midnight with his men. He'll be the old Turkish barracks. He'll have twenty men with rifles and a very good man."

Colin called Abd, and when she said he was to take her mare with a message to Nuri he became radiant.

Ten minutes later they had exchanged roles. Colin was outwardly the man who had brought antiquities in his handkerchief.

"Sandy! Those clothes are nasty! . . . Now, tell me the password and how I'm to know Daham and what I have to do.

"He won't expect you till nine. I told him I wanted to sell some of my antiques and collect some new ones. The password is Harlva and you'll know Daham by his fatany face, and he wears a fez and has a gingery moustache. Don't go till the others are there and then just let him see you rear the door. I always sit near the door at meetings, so he won't be surprised. I don't suppose he'll take any further notice of you."

Colin moved away quickly as she dared to Sayid Abdulla's house.

The old Arab asked her business and she gave the password. He pointed to a door across the dirty courtyard. She found herself in a room full of men who all stopped speaking and looked up as she entered.

"This is my clerk, he will remain by the door," said Daham and they all returned her greeting and then continued their discussion.

Colin crouched on the beaten mud floor, dimly and crawling with vermin and congratulated herself on her good luck. She wished they were better and that she could see all the faces distinctly. There was a Sikh and another Arab beside Ibrahim—they were a fine pair.

Daham was the born agitator. It was interesting to see him at work. He was promising every thing his country would be, theirs, all the wealth of the English, all their stores, their white equipment were waiting for the taking. They would murder every Englishman in the country—he dwelt lovingly on this and Colin watched its effect on his listeners. A few demurred; they feared the Air Forces and they bombs. But Daham swept all doubt aside.

The result of his harangue was a foregone conclusion.

They had nearly all put their marks to the document. Colin rose slowly to her feet holding her hand to her head. She must not seem to be in too much of a hurry.

Now her other hand was on the door.

"Ah, where are you going?" called Daham.

"My tooth, I must get medicine for it," answered Colin in her deepest, most guttural voice.

"Stop him, that's not Ali." Daham rushed across the room.

Colin was through the door and running through the courtyard when Daham's yell woke up the man at the outer door.

"Stop the man, hold him," Daham shouted, and the same moment he fired. Colin felt something graze her left arm but there was no time for anything but escape. Daham was after her, he was firing at her legs . . . and she was in the corner . . . and into Sandy's arms as he and the police came running up.

"Don't touch this man," shouted Sandy, "follow me!", and they swept over her.

For a moment she wanted to go back after Sandy and see what was happening—then there was a great noise and firing came from the house—but she remembered her part.

She must hurry home or her alibi would be no use. The shots had ceased.

Sandy when he appeared caught her in his arms.

"My poor darling are you hurt? Did that brute touch you?"

"No, no Sandy, it's what happened." Have you got the document?"

"Yes—they got away with it. Bad luck. But we've got Daham and several of the others. Ibrahim got away though, I never saw him and I think he'll have saved the document—he's too much of a civilian and an intrigued to destroy it, and that's to the good. They're all being marched to the Serai, so we'll have to change and you go there as soon as you can. You may identify some of them. You're looking awfully green, you weren't hit, were you."

"Only a scratch, I think."

After a quarter of an hour they had resumed their original roles and Colin was sitting in a chair. Colin's paleness was hidden under a mask than usually vigorous application of sunburn and she held her left arm rather stiffly.

"You must go now, Sandy, shan't feel happy till I know you're well out of the town. I rather dread Stanhope's return. I'll say two words to the document Colin brought me news about this meeting but that they became suspicious of him and he had to run for it. Alarm was given and so I only nabbed the ringleaders and some of the others. I'll have to decide what to do with Ibrahim when I see how things go."

They left the room, Colin walking ahead, Sandy behind. Colin looked on Ahmed the Serai.

The police officer had done his job well. His prisoners were handcuffed in the outer office. Colin's eyes glanced swiftly from one face to another. There were six of them—so the rest had escaped, and apart from Daham they were not the most important of the conspirators—still it was a good bag. Saad ibn Rashid was not among them—trust that old fox to be safe. The rest were pretty miserable; they were wondering what was to be their punishment. Only Daham looked dangerous.

The necessary formalities in connection with the arrests were made and the prisoners marched away for the remainder of the night. They would be brought before Stanhope and Petrie when they returned from their tour.

Colin was glad when it was over and she could walk back to the house, for her head was throbbing and her arm hurt.

Stanhope was standing by his desk when she returned.

Colin described her meeting with the antiquity dealer, her brother's agent in the sug and her plan to round up the conspirators after the signing of the document, and how that plan partially miscarried.

"We got Daham and five of the conspirators," she went on to explain, "but not the document, nor Sayid ibn Rashid nor Ibrahim. I'm afraid I've failed badly, sir. The police behaved splendidly, but Saad or Ibrahim must have snatched up the document and got away as soon as Daham rushed after Aladdin's man. That gave them a good start. We hunted round but could find nothing."

"Well—didn't you arrest Ibrahim afterwards?"

"No, sir. That can be done now if you wish, but as I only knew from the agent that he was there and he will think that I heard of the meeting from him and will have no idea that I saw or deciphered the code on the writing table, I thought it might be better to let him go. He may be of more use to us if he remains at large and thinks we do not suspect him than if he's locked up. It was a splendid opportunity we might have smashed any chance of a rising here, and I failed badly."

"Well, I'm not sure I think you did. You've not much experience and you count a bit too much on your inborn knowledge of the East. Stanhope was anxious and tired or he might have chosen his words more carefully. I don't like the sound of that agent of your brother's. I suppose he really was one of his men? I'll have a good go at him tomorrow."

"Oh, he a gone."

"Gone. What d'you mean? You've not been such a fool as to let him go!"

"He was eager to get back to report to Alasdair and I thought it best for him to get away."

"Good God! I'd have thought you'd have had more sense! You let yourself be led by the nose by some Arab you've never seen before, and then when he fails to carry out his part of the job you let him go without further question. How d'you know the document ever existed?"

"Oh I know it did!"

"You don't, you've only got your word for it! You've only that man's word for the whole thing. I'm not doubting the object of the meeting, but the man told you there was a document and he would give the signal for you to rush in and capture it and when he does there is no sign of a document. You have an extraordinary trust in that man's word. I don't believe he came from your brother. Had he anything to prove he did?" A piece of any kind."

"No, but I'm quite sure he did." Colin's voice almost trembled with fatigue.

"You say he had nothing to show he came from him and yet you are sure he did. Are you keeping anything back, Colin? All these explanations have been childish. What do you know about this man?"

"I've told you all that matters, sir."

"Then you do know more."

"Yes, I do, sir. But I've really told you everything you need know."

"Everything I need know! This is beyond a joke. You're here under my orders and on a matter as important as the possibility of a general rising you decide in some peculiar way of your own what you should tell me and what not! I'm responsible for you as well as for the others."

Colin's face whitened under its tan. She was almost at the end of her strength.

"I'm putting things badly, sir. What I meant is that anything I've not told you about this man is what I know as my father's son, not as your assistant. I cannot tell you more. Please believe me."

Stanhope looked at his insubordinate assistant. The boy explained by seemed pretty exhausted and his eyes, troubled and pained, reminded Stanhope of his sister's. He might have blundered a bit but no one could doubt the sincerity of his words or his looks.

"Very well, Gillespie, we'll leave it at that. I don't like this secrecy, but I won't question you further. You look played out. You'd better get to bed."

Colin crossed the verandah and stood on the roof outside her bedroom staring into the sky. She had been a fool to keep a girl spout everything! It had upset Sandy's fine plan, and now it was making her feel Stanhope's cutting remarks as she knew Sandy would never have felt them. It hurt dreadfully that he was so displeased, his confidence shaken. When she went to bed tears fell on her pillow.

Brothers of the Sage -:- Interesting Short Story by H. Louis Raybold

MONTY SMITH and Bill Ogilvie didn't call themselves that. Not by a long shot. On the contrary, they were wont to address each other by epithets altogether unbecoming to print. Yet the terms covered a deep affection.

For years Monty and Bill had teamed together, punching for the same outfits, riding at the same fourth of July rodeos, bunking in the same bunkhouse and getting their chow out of the same chuck wagon. They were inseparable.

And now a girl had come between them. A slip of a girl with eyes like the wild blue gentian and hair the color of the tawny range itself. Maisie was her name and she was the daughter of the foreman of the "Rax X."

Monty had flirted with her casually in the very beginning, as was his custom with a pretty girl, and no one had been more surprised than Monty himself when he realized he had fallen in love. This surprise, however, had been surpassed by a still greater astonishment when Maisie shyly confessed that she was not her only admirer. That Bill had already asked her to marry him. Hard-boiled, woman-hating old Bill!

Swinging his long legs on the corral fence and chewing a piece of straw, Monty thought the situation through. A red sun appeared in the eastern level horizon when he heaved a mighty sigh and climbed down.

A prayer for the unsuspectible chap he was, must have fallen for Maisie for all he was worth. Fourth of July, rodeos, bunking and the same bunkhouse and getting their chow out of the same chuck wagon! The same romance!

And now a girl had come between them. A slip of a girl with eyes like the wild blue gentian and hair the color of the tawny range itself. Maisie was her name and she was the daughter of the foreman of the "Rax X."

Monty had flirted with her casually in the very beginning, as was his custom with a pretty girl, and no one had been more surprised than Monty himself when he realized he had fallen in love. This surprise, however, had been surpassed by a still greater astonishment when Maisie shyly confessed that she was not her only admirer. That Bill had already asked her to marry him. Hard-boiled, woman-hating old Bill!

Tourists Can Now Get Canadian "Info"

Fredericton, N. B., June 20—Heralding the approach of what is expected to be the busiest tourist season New Brunswick has ever enjoyed, the Tourist Information Bureau at the Canadian end of the international bridge which spans the St. Croix river between Calais, Me., and St. Stephen, N. B., is now open.

From June 15 until September 15 this bureau has annually been serving the increasing thousands of motor tourists entering New Brunswick via the St. Stephen-Calais gateway, being the first place motor tourists coming to Canada by the "Down East" route and following No. 1 Atlantic Highway reach on the Canadian side of the international boundary. A staff of attendants experienced in the work are on duty continuously from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. or later every day.

Combustion Earning Figures Are Larger

Earnings for the first half of 1929 will exceed the same 1928 period when net income was $1,057,470 after depreciation, interest, taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends, to $1.04 a share on 874,513 common shares, Pres. Learned told the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

"The New Brunswick coal distillation plant of the corporation has been operating continuously since the latter part of January on a steadily increasing scale, and 2,500,000 cubic feet of gas of certified quality is being delivered daily to Public Service Electric & Gas Corp.," Mr. Learnard said.

Canadian Pacific Gains, Says Beatty

"Our May gross increased $126,000 over the $17,807,974 of May, 1928, and net will be about the same as in May last year, when it was $3,055,719," said President Beatty of Canadian Pacific. "First week of June gross increased $101,000 and the second week increased $239,000."

Senator Copeland Should Oppose ALL Lobbying

Senator Copeland has protested against the Methodist lobby at Washington, and against the attempt of this lobby to influence the vote of United States Senators.

Senator Copeland could protest with equal justice and equal effect against the attempt of any lobby to influence the vote of Congressmen or influence the action of any department of government.

In fact, Senator Copeland would confer a benefit upon the nation if he would broaden the scope of his protest, widen the sphere of his activity, and try to make lobbying of any kind a criminal offence.

There is, of course, no objection to any honest, public endeavor to influence public opinion, and so to affect the action of the people's representatives secretly and insidiously is a crime against democracy and should be punishable as such.

It might be a little difficult for the Senate of the United States at the moment to protest convincingly against the evils of the lobby at Washington when they have but recently confirmed the appointment of one of the most conspicuous lobbyists of one of the most offensive trusts to an important judicial position.

But Senator Copeland would have rights on his side in a crusade against lobbying and lobbyists of all kinds.

He would have the support of the press and of the public and eventually his crusade would succeed.

This government of ours is drifting away from democracy.

The power of special interests is becoming greater every day in the government.

Public opinion is less and less considered.

Great industrial corporations determine our tariff schedules.

And even our sumptuary legislation is largely controlled by special interests, who think that their preferences and prejudices are of more importance than the preservation of the democratic principles on which this nation is founded.

Most of these undemocratic and un-American influences operate through a lobby.

If the lobby were eliminated by law these special interests would have to make public appeal to Congress and to the United States Government, and would have to argue their case openly and honestly before the great body of the American people.

That public method is the only way in which the rights of the people can consistently be maintained, and the spirit of our republican form of government preserved.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Commencement Stirs Us

Commencement moves us in strange fashion, stirs within us something vibrant, responsive, whether in relation to memory or desire. Tall elms and smiling girls, white flannels, caps and gowns, noisy "frat" houses, laughter, bright hot sun, and a lump in the throat that will not down.

Condensed, it lies before you in black and white at the breakfast table:

That brave, splendid statement made by Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick before the Boston University seniors: "The world's best work is done for fun. It comes out of that margin of man's life over and beyond the demands of bare need, where man does what he wants to do for the joy of doing it." Soundest of commencement advice.

President Faunce stepping down from the presidency of Brown University, a capacity in which he served devotedly, inspiringly, for thirty years.

Mrs. Nellie Austin Freeman, a grandmother, receiving her degree from University of Southern California.

Miss Betty Ford, 17, graduating from Stanford University after spending only six years in school.

And a Harvard senior deprived of his degree because he wrote a Baccalaureate hymn discovered to be not nice after it was sung at exercises.

Mr. J. P. Marquand, who writes of student life with a subtle pathos, might do the subject justice.

To Help Flying

This Government and all the people that live under it are interested in the development of aviation. In Europe flying is subsidized directly by the different governments. That cannot be done in this country as yet.

But our Government CAN and SHOULD do many things to encourage flying.

For instance, the Postoffice Department, which has done more to develop aviation than any other public or private agency in America, might help the fliers to identify many cities by painting the names of cities on the roofs of the postoffices.

A simpler plan for easier identification might be to print a number indicating a certain city with a letter next it to indicate the State. Thus 1-K might mean Louisville, Kentucky. Fliers could carry an index, identifying the cities by numbers and State initials.

Also our Government, the army particularly, could give instruction to officers in command of landing fields to treat civilian fliers hospitably and courteously, maintaining public stations to supply gas and other necessary equipment, for proper payment, of course.

The Answer Echoes "Why?"

-:- -:- By FRANKLIN COLLIER

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S a typical letter of protest against "coddling criminals."

"The way most of you newspaper people talk about criminals is disgusting to any sensible person," snorts the writer. "All this bosh about mental tests and psychological analysis is sickening. Criminals are being coddled until they think they're heroes instead of just smart rascals. Do you think you're going to stop crime that way? It's a waste of the taxpayers' money. The only way to stop crime is to execute criminals promptly or shut them up for life."

And a signs himself "A Farmer."

I suspect from the vigor of that letter that he's a good farmer. No neglected fences and roads on his farm—no sour land—no vermin—no blight or scale on vines or trees. This sensible farmer knows how expensive such conditions are and he takes every precaution to prevent them. He has his soils analyzed by the State University and follows instructions to bring them up to standard. He knows all about vermin—how and why and where they breed and how that may be eradicated. He's particularly interested in the latest findings on blight and scale and injurious fruit flies. He reads all the reports from the great laboratories where scientists are constantly at work studying such pests and he applies their discoveries to his valuable orchards. Much of his work is preventive. He doesn't wait until the pests arrive—he prevents their breeding. In short, he uses all the findings of science to protect his farm.

YET HE OBJECTS WHEN THE SAME METHODS ARE USED FOR THE PROTECTION OF HIS NATION.

HE THINKS IT'S GOOD SENSE TO STUDY SCALE ON TREES, BUT HE SAYS IT'S "BOSH" AND "SILLY SENTIMENTALITY" TO STUDY SCALE ON SOCIETY.

Criminals are human blight. It's true that they are "smart rascals," but so is a fruit fly. They are both malignant forms of life. They are not merely mischievous individuals. They are the logical and inevitable results of certain conditions.

CRIMINALS DEVELOP FROM CERTAIN CONDITIONS AS SURELY AS FRUIT FLIES DEVELOP FROM CERTAIN EGGS.

You can't cure the malignancy of fruit flies by burning a few individual flies. You must study the conditions which cause those flies. You must prevent their breeding.

You can't cure the malignancy of criminals by executing or imprisoning a few individual criminals. You must study the conditions which cause crime. Conditions such as bad marriages—bad homes—poor schools—child labor—malnutrition—evil environment—lack of healthy exercise and opportunity—It isn't "silly sentimentality" to study these conditions. It's the only intelligent answer to our most serious social problem.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

IF you see an average baldheaded man trying to scald a poultice of postage stamps off his skull you will know that he has just crossed the great divide by air mail.

The registered cost of coasting by air mail is the same as other bundles. Two cents an ounce, for every ounce after the third mile.

You save three days this way and age the same number of years.

A man weighing two hundred pounds would weigh thirty-two hundred ounces if he were divided equally among all the guests.

If you want to stop en route that is easy. You are entitled to a parachute made out of cancelled postage stamps.

We have travelled by air mail. And, while the deliveries are fast, we do not care so much for the postoffice.

However, it solves the swift transportation problem. You look down a long flight of steps that ain't there. You see human beings crawling around like beetles.

If you have never flown, then you cannot realize how rubber heels absorb the shocks of ten thousand steps between the dining-room and the kitchen.

Buy yourself a transcontinental set of postage stamps and waft south through overtaxed space to the Coast.

As you zoom and zipper around the mezzanine of the universe you wonder how Paul Revere ever got famous on a hoss.

The Lindbergh influence is so strong that after flying three miles we wanted to address a Rotary club.

From now on, if we want to go anywhere, we are going to fly. And we are going to fly just as fast as a stolen bicycle can take us.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 20—Greenwich Village, fed up on its circusy, street carnival role, has definitely gone high-brow. The waffle parlors and coffee shops with their "prop" long-haired and deep-thinking paleo-meditationists and such have about completely played out.

The Village no longer boasts of "characters" such as Tiny Tim and his "soul candy." Grace Godwin and her tea garret, Bobbie Edwards and his cigar box uke, Guido Bruno and his book attic and Sonia the cigarette girl. The Great Unwashed who fattened on slummers also have pulled up stakes.

The declasse brown stone fronts with tiny yards and flat stones which fringed the Village have been routed out for the erection of mammoth apartment buildings with elegant marquees and gold braided doormen. The gray streets no longer ring with songs of hungry troubadours.

The new comers are the sort who loll in imported limousines and are not interested in dining in candle-sputtering studios, prowling around tumble-down book shops or mingling with shaggy poets. They have done all that on the real Left Bank atmosphere of Paris.

Most of the dens have expired, only a few linger. A faint Latin Quarter manner remains but generally the cafes are brighter and serve better food. Shops are smarter. Barney Gallant, whose Village night club once catered to villagers, now reserves its best tables for uptown swells.

Little alley theaters with O. this Fifty-st'il dramas are now turning to intimate revues and smart boudoir plays that are not only kailsh but even gunb-huh. The Village is this Fall to have two Park-Avenue-smart restaurants with all French menus.

Even the cinema has turned snooty. The Theater Guild movie house, for instance, on 8th avenue shows no rowdy films whatever. All deep stuff. The entrance is as blank as Harpo Marx's pan. You have to know exactly where it is and be somebody or you do not get in.

The craze for open work sandals by stockingless maids this silly season has inspired two alert manicure girls to reap a harvest as toe nail manicurists. Their salon is in the apartment they jointly occupy and the charge for a pedal polish is $3.

Only the Childs name remains with the famous chain of restaurants. The members of the family were given the boot by the majority stockholders some time back. They had built up a great business serving well-cooked food in clean surroundings at reasonable prices But they got out of step with the times and tried to feist a few faddists ideas on the public. For a long time one could not acquire meat dishes because of the founder's vegetarian hobbies and there was a period, too, when no water was served with meals unless especially requested. Better dinners at better prices arrived and the Childs places were almost deserted. The new management has done away with all the fumiddidles and business booms again. The chain also received a black eye with the public for permitting one or two of their establishments to become the night haunts of pathological pansies. That has been spiked.

Senator Copeland and Methodist "Lobby"

(From the Literary Digest of May 25.)

A "RASSLIN'" MATCH is suggested, but not expected, to settle the truth of Senator Royal S. Copeland's charge that Mr. Deets Pickett, as a member of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, tried two years ago to influence his vote on a Prohibition bill. But the press takes the charge seriously and wrestles strongly with the subject of church interference in politics.

It must be first set down, however, that Senator Copeland's charge is promptly denied by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board, and the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle comments that the Senator's indignation "would have carried more weight if it had been expressed at the time when the Senator saw a chance to make a little political capital by keeping quiet." His prosecution, imagines the New York Christian Advocate (Methodist), "was the result of the accumulated pressure of the repeated irritations which unavoidably attended the support of the Democratic candidates for the recent presidential campaign and which eventually overtaxed all the safety devices with which a prudent politician surrounds himself."

PUBLIC LETTER

To keep things in their proper sequence, Senator Copeland, in a public letter published far and wide, records his amazement at learning, he says, that the board's official journal had boasted that it had corralled his vote on a prohibition bill. "The man who visited my office," he writes, "represented himself as coming from the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church. He came to see me, he said, to ask me 'as a Methodist to vote for the pending closure bill.' He was plainly and openly a lobbyist. In my opinion he was seeking in an improper manner to gain the vote of a Senator of the United States." Senator Copeland recites:

"I have been greatly concerned for years over what I regard to be an improper activity, the work at Washington of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church, in its manifest efforts to dictate and control legislation. I disapprove this.

"That, as I view it, is not the function of the Methodist Church. Our traditional attitude has been one of rebellion against ecclesiastical interference with the State. Yet we are doing exactly what we have demanded shall not be done by the Catholics.

"Had that branch of the Christian Church erected a building adjoining the Capitol, there would have been vehement denunciation from every Methodist pulpit. As I see it, we cannot afford to do what we are unwilling for others to do."

FUNDS BUDGETED

"We have no lobby here; we have no lobbyist. All the funds of our board are budgeted," replies Dr. Wilson in a letter which receives as much publicity as that of Senator Copeland. Wilson also repudiates responsibility for the story which got to Senator Copeland's ears that the board had said it had influenced his vote, and it is recited:

"The exact facts are that two years ago we became very greatly interested in getting the reorganization well passed, and that one of our representatives called up Senator Copeland on the telephone and said, 'I want to come over and see you.'

"The reply was: 'What do you want to see me about?'

"'About the closure resolution coming up at 1 o'clock.'

"'What do you want me to do about it?' the Senator asked.

"'You ought to vote for it,' was the reply.

"Senator Copeland said: 'Come on over.'

"In that interview the senator explained that he was not in favor of the Volstead law, but was in favor of law enforcement and said, 'I will vote for the closure resolution and for the bill.'

"Mr. Pickett then suggested the propriety of his publishing that fact, and the senator requested that it be done.

"The paragraph in The Voice describing his position was exactly what he wished published in his constituency at that time, and without any special interest in this political transaction for publication, we did it as an act of justice to the senator in view of his position and vote."

FLINGS AT MEN

As to Senator Copeland's statement that if the Catholics were to put up a building as the Methodists have done, every Methodist pulpit would denounce it. Dr. Wilson replies that it is false, and goes on:

"The Catholic church has long had a headquarters here, from which they have no hesitancy in conferring with senators and other government officials, and not a Methodist pulpit in the land has made any special protest against that right.

"When Senator Copeland says that every one would protest, he knows that the Catholic church has such a headquarters, and he knows that the Methodists do not protest."

However, the New York World remarks that "for years it has been an admitted fact that the Methodist Board has taken a direct and active part in politics, that it has specifically indorsed certain candidates as opposed to other candidates, that it has raised and spent money to further its purposes in political campaigns, and that it has openly lobbied for and against legislation in Congress." Furthermore, we read:

"The various political maneuvers of the board, its frequent attempts to dictate party platforms, its cheap flings at men in public life to whose policies it found itself opposed, its numerous offenses against good manners and good taste: all this has been permitted to take place with scarcely a protest powerful enough to reach the press or the public. It may be that the faction within the church which much have found this drift of events alarming lacked means to voice its opposition. It seems more likely that such groups of dissidents merely held their peace, like Senator Copeland, lest their criticism recoil somehow to the injury of the church.

"If this is true, then Senator Copeland's demand that 'this business end' may hearten whatever opposition exists within the church to the policies of the Methodist Board in Washington and bring that opposition to the surface. We hope so. For in the policies of the Methodist Board in Washington lie confusion and deep trouble. Only a misguided sense of loyalty or a mistaken sense of duty can permanently lash a great religious body like the Methodist church to the wheel of a frivolous, mischievous and intolerant lobby."

HEALTH EXPERT

Senator Copeland has said something, in the opinion of the New Haven Journal-Courier, "which has been felt by hundreds of thousands of American citizens, who, while not experiencing the pressure of church politics, have regretted profoundly that in this great controversy over governmental methods of control they have been forced to witness the house of God descending to the practices of the professional politician."

But all this talk of the Methodist building being a palace on the one hand or "a hatchery of cheap politics and intrigue on the other" is childish, declares the Central Christian Advocate (Methodist), which says that no individual is authorized to speak for the Methodist Episcopal church or the board, that when it desires to go on record it does so as a corporate body and not as a ukase by an individual." Then this Advocate goes on sternly:

"Lobbying, traffic, still crawling across the threshold of our homes, corrupting all it crawls across, utterly devoid of conscience or remorse, is the python we are at grips with. We do not approach it with banquets, but with enforcement legislation and penal sentences and plain words. We intend to strike it. We intend to do our part to kill it as the Constitution of the United States demands.

"Why should our friend, the senator from New York, himself a health expert, a leader of millions, be willing to speak for the health of the American people, in the presence of this enemy of health, this enemy of all good, declare: 'If I had my way, this imposing building would be razed stone by stone, for it is the symbol of sinister forces that if allowed to go on will end in the destruction of the Methodist church'?

DEADLY PYTHON

"Should the Methodist church cease to speak out on this deadly python crawling into our courts, our politics, our social order, and up the pillars of which rest the very existence of the state, and let events take their course, she would be false to her high privilege, responsible for the ever-increasing effrontery with which the world's greatest enemy defies every attempt to cast it out and banish it from the world."

The inclusion of the name of the Roman Catholic Church in the controversy brings a reply from Patrick J. Ward, director of the Bureau of Publicity and Information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, who says we read in an Associated Press dispatch:

"There is no similarity between these two organizations. The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is in party politics. It supports or opposes candidates for public office because of their acceptability or non-acceptability to the Methodist Church.

"Our purposes are political.

"The Catholic Church and the Catholic body in the United States has no political platform. The National Catholic Welfare Conference is not organized for any political purpose. It does not align itself with any political party in return for party favors, or support, and it has never sought the defeat of any political candidate because of his stand on any particular piece of legislation."
